WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon said today he will veto the emergency energy legislation which passed Congress Wednesday.

Nixon said the bill with its provision for rolling back crude oil prices "will result in longer gas lines and would lead to compulsory rationing. And that we're not going to have."

The action had been expected and was announced by the President in a speech to a Young Republican group in Washington.

Gas Shortage To Continue Into Summer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Office predicts the gasoline shortage will be as tight at midyear as it is now, but service station lines should be shorter.

John C. Sawhill, deputy administrator of the FEO, told senators Wednesday that he expects the shortage to become more evenly distributed across the country.

Sawhill noted that it was only this month that FEO began trying to get state-by-state compilations of gasoline supplies and to re-allocate gasoline from well-off states to harder-hit ones.

The FEO official also announced rules changes aimed at giving oil companies greater incentives to import crude oil.

The regulation FEO is taking steps to change says refiners who have more crude oil than the national average have to share it with those who have less.

Sawhill said this has produced lower incentives for importers and refiners and has contributed to gasoline changes on the East Coast.

Sawhill said that if the Arab oil embargo continues, the gasoline shortage in the next quarter will be about the same as the current 15 to 20 per cent. If Arab oil starts flowing again, the U.S. shortage within 90 days would be 4 to 8 per cent, he added.

Sawhill said the shorter gasoline lines he expects will make rationing unnecessary.

Producers Purchase Stockyards

The sale of Bowling Stockyards to Producers Livestock Assn. was announced by the Bowling family Wednesday.

Beginning Monday the operation will be known as Circleville Producers. The same office and yard personnel will be retained by Producers with the exception of Frank Bowling Jr. who will no longer be manager.

Producers Livestock Assn. operates 24 yards in Ohio and Indiana. The Circleville location will be its 25th market.

"We hope the people of Pickaway County and surrounding area continue to give their support to the new owners," Mrs. Frank (Helen) Bowling Sr. said Wednesday in announcing the sale.

A spokesman for Producers announced the manager will be announced soon for the Circleville market.

GAS shortage in Circleville can be partially blamed on gas wars in Columbus, Chillicothe and other surrounding communities during 1972 according to one local service station operator. Current allotments are based on 1972 gallonage. Gallonage pumped in that year by Circleville dealers was down approximately 25 per cent because of the gas wars.

THE EASIEST WAY TO MAKE RELATIVES FEEL AT HOME IS TO VISIT THEM THERE

The House sent the bill to the White House Wednesday, but the 250-to-151 margin of final passage was short of the two-thirds majority needed to override a presidential veto.

House Republican leaders predicted the expected veto would stand, although Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said he was confident the Senate would vote to override. A two-thirds majority in both houses is required to overturn a presidential veto.

The bill's most controversial provision is an oil pricerollback.

This would reduce the price of gasoline at the pump by up to four cents a gallon and cut soaring propane prices in half, according to figures produced by the House Commerce Committee.

But Nixon said at his Monday night press conference that the rollback would lead to additional fuel shortages

"which would require, without question, rationing all over the country."

The bill would give Nixon the power to order mandatory gasoline rationing — a step he now says there is better than an even chance of avoiding.

Wednesday's passage capped a day of parliamentary maneuvering in which the House reversed its Rules Committee and voted down a parliamentary rule that would have left the measure open to procedural challenge by any member of the House.

The House voted instead to adopt a rule requiring roll call votes on some of the bill's more controversial provisions, including the price rollback and rationing authority.

A motion to strike the rationing authority from the bill failed by only 12 votes while a similar motion against the rollback provision went down 173 to

The rollback would fix the price of all oil produced in the U.S. at $5.25 per barrel with a price ceiling of $7.09 per barrel. Roughly three quarters of domestic crude oil already sells at the $5.25 level under Phase 4 price controls.

The remaining one quarter has been freed from controls in an effort to stimulate production and is selling at approximately $10 per barrel.

The bill also would permit temporary relaxation of clean air standards in order to allow power plants to burn coal in place of scarce stocks of low-sulfur natural gas and petroleum. Auto makers would be allowed a one- and possibly two-year delay in meeting exhaust standards.

Another provision in the bill would provide an additional $500 million in unemployment benefits to workers laid off as a result of fuel shortages.

Calley Wins Freedom On Own Recognizance

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — For the first time in nearly three years, Lt. William L. Calley Jr. is free to come and go as he pleases and to choose from thousands of civilian job offers.

"I feel I could be useful to society," the 30-year-old officer told U.S. District Court Judge J. Robert Elliott on Wednesday before Elliott ordered Calley freed on $1,000 bond.

But the slight, sandy-haired lieutenant was not required to post bond. He was released on his own recognizance. The Army said it had not yet decided whether to appeal Elliott's order.

In admitting Calley to bond, Elliott said he would hear at a later date Calley's challenge of a court-martial verdict which found him guilty of murdering at least 22 civilians at My Lai in March 1968 during an Army sweep through the Vietnamese village.

Calley was sentenced to life in prison, but the term was subsequently reduced to 20 years.

The judge said Calley should be freed from house arrest at his apartment at nearby Ft. Benning because he presented no danger to himself or to society.

Calley left immediately under military escort for the small red brick apartment where he has been confined for 35 months.

A court source said Calley chose the military escort because he had received a threat. The source declined to elaborate, however.

Military guards were removed from Calley's apartment shortly after he arrived, but military police continued to circle the block in a jeep.

Calley's girlfriend, Anne Moore, met him at the apartment, where his first act of freedom was to chase his dog, "Joe," in the yard.

"Calley has had literally thousands of job offers, finding employment won't be any problem," said Capt. J. Houston Gordon, Calley's Army counsel, after the hearing.

"Immediately I've got to go back to school and I'm going to try to be self-employed," Calley told the court when his attorney asked him to describe his plans for his future.

Calley told Elliott that if bail were granted he would live in the Columbus area, although Kenneth Hanson, Calley's local civilian attorney, said the young officer could leave the city if he wanted even though he is still a military prisoner pending appeal.

In Washington, an Army spokesman said Calley is now free to come and go as he wishes and that there is no requirement that he report to his superiors for assignment.

Calley declined to talk with newsmen after the hearing.

"I can't comment, I'm under a restraining order," said Calley, smiling and appearing relaxed after the 2½-hour hearing.

Miss Moore, in her late 20s, told the court that Calley is not hostile or bitter despite his long confinement. Asked by newsmen if she had discussed marriage plans with Calley, she replied with a smile, "I'm not going to tell you."

Army Secretary Howard H. Callaway now has Calley's sentence under review, and President Nixon has said that he will make a final review of Calley's case.

Way Open For Israel-Syria Talks

JERUSALEM (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger flew to Cairo today while Israel drew up its proposals for a disengagement agreement with Syria.

Premier Golda Meir saluted Kissinger's efforts Wednesday night after he brought her a list of Israeli prisoners of war held in Syria. Israel had demanded the list as a condition for disengagement negotiations, and Mrs. Meir said Israel now was prepared to start bargaining.

Despite his diplomatic breakthrough in opening the way for disengagement talks, Kissinger did not expect the Arabs to lift their oil embargo against the United States and the Netherlands immediately, his aides disclosed. They said the secretary felt "in his bones" that the boycott would last at least another few days.

Kissinger flew to Cairo to get the assent of President Anwar Sadat of Egypt to continuation of the buffer role of United Nations forces between the Israeli and Egyptian armies in the Sinai desert. The Security Council mandate for the U.N. force now extends only until April 24.

The secretary of state also hoped to advance the restoration of U.S.-Egyptian relations to full diplomatic status.

Mrs. Meir said Israel's disengagement proposals would be ready for Kissinger to take to Syria when he returns to Jerusalem Friday. But Israeli officials said she made clear to Kissinger that Israel is not going to meet Syria's demand for a commitment to withdraw eventually from all the Golan Heights territory captured from Syria in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

Senior officials said that Israel's position is that any disengagement line with Syria must run through the territory Israel captured in the October war. The officials said a final boundary between Syria and Israel, to be negotiated as part of a general peace treaty, could be drawn somewhere through the territory taken in 1967.

But the officials said that Israel will never give up all of the heights and let Syrian guns return to the edge of the plateau from which they regularly shelled Israeli farms and fisheries.

Diplomats in Damascus said

Kissinger was now under pressure to return with a draft agreement acceptable to the Syrians or they could claim they had been deceived. These sources said that if Kissinger fails, the Geneva peace talks will not resume and the oil embargo against the United States will continue.

Israel had refused to start negotiating a separation of forces on the Syrian front until Syrian President Hafez Assad delivered the list of Israelis his government holds prisoner and agreed to let Red Cross officials visit them.

Assad met these conditions during talks Wednesday with Kissinger, and the secretary of state brought the list of 65 names to Jerusalem. Israeli officials predicted that talks between the Israelis and Syrians would get under way in several weeks.

Suicide Ruled In Ashville Man's Death

Dr. Ray Carroll, Pickaway County Coroner, ruled suicide in the death of Lowell Neece, 49, Ashville, occurring 9:20 p.m. Wednesday.

According to the report taken by Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy James Deal, Neece shot himself in the chest with a .32 caliber six-shot handgun.

Born Aug. 8, 1925, he was the son of David and Edna Strous Neece.

Neece was a Sewage plant operator at Lockbourne Air Force Base.

He was a Veteran of World War II Army Air Corps and VFW Scioto Post No. 2505.

Survivors include his widow, Carol; one brother, James Neece, Columbus; nieces and nephews.

The funeral service will be 10:30 a.m. Saturday at the Bastian Funeral Home with the Rev. Robert Michelfelder officiating.

Burial will be in the Reber Hill cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home 2-4 and 7-9 p.m. Friday.

Speed Limit Bill Passes Assembly, Goes To Gilligan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan was expected to sign Friday Ohio's new 55 miles per hour speed limit into law, making it effective at once.

There were reports Gilligan would sign the bill today, but his news secretary, Bob Tenenbaum, said the signing would come Friday instead.

The maximum speed on Ohio's expressways, now 70 miles an hour, and those on state highways at 60, both will be reduced to 55 as required under newly enacted federal energy conservation legislation.

State representatives completed legislative action on the emergency bill Wednesday, agreeing 70-17 to amendments by the Senate which brought truckers and auto drivers under equal penalty provisions.

Truckers, limited to 55 miles per hour under existing law, could only be fined $50 and would not lose two driver penalty points under the bill as it went to the governor. As passed by the House, passenger car drivers but not truckers could escape loss of points for driving beyond 55.

Although the bill becomes law as soon as Gilligan signs it, Department of Transportation officials say it will be several weeks before all the highways in the state have the new speed limits posted. The signs have been in preparation for several weeks.

Motorists generally will be on their own in observing the 55 mile limit, but

U.S., Egypt To Resume Relations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Egypt will announce resumption of full diplomatic relations today, according to diplomatic sources.

The announcement will be made simultaneously in Cairo and the White House, the sources said.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger worked out the timing of the announcement after he arrived in Cairo earlier today to meet with Egyptian president Anwar Sadat, they said.

Egypt broke diplomatic relations with the United States during the six-day Arab-Israeli war in 1967.

However, low-level contacts were maintained in the form of interest sections housed in the embassies of other nations.

The announcement that full diplomatic relations were being resumed came as no surprise since both nations previously indicated last year that such a move was planned.

In fact, Egypt and the United States even designated the men who would assume full ambassadorial rank with the re-establishment of formal relations.

The Egyptian ambassador is Ashraf Ghorbal. The American ambassador already in Cairo is Hermann Elits.

Although the bill becomes law as soon as Gilligan signs it, Department of Transportation officials say it will be several weeks before all the highways in the state have the new speed limits posted. The signs have been in preparation for several weeks.

Motorists generally will be on their own in observing the 55 mile limit, but

State Highway Patrol officials said officers will consider the absence of signs among conditions under which a driver is cited, at least initially. The signs' absence, technically, however, would not constitute a defense under the law.

In other action, the House voted 81-9 to make a further modification in Ohio's holder in due course law, a change sponsors said offers more protection for consumers against defective merchandise.

Rep. Edward J. Orlett, D-34 Dayton, sponsored the measure which extends from 15 to 90 days the time in which a consumer has recourse following the purchase of shoddy merchandise under an installment contract.

A financial institution which purchases a credit contract from the retail seller is the "holder in due course" under existing legal terminology. Until the legislature enacted the 15-day provision last year, the financial institution had no liability under the law.

Orlett's bill, as it went to the floor, called for outright repeal of the law and made the holder liable in the same manner as the seller during the life of the contract. A floor amendment that won 76-12 approval retained the law but extended the time during which a consumer can establish defense for nonpayment from 15 to 90 days.

In other action, the House approved 72-13 an emergency bill which permits Aid to Dependent Children payments to be made to a dependent youngster up to age 21 if he is enrolled in a college or vocational or technical training program. It now goes to the Senate.

The House voted without dissent (85-0) to place on a statewide election ballot a proposal authorizing the legislature to extend homestead property tax exemptions to the totally and permanently handicapped.

In its other business, the Senate sent to the House by a 23-8 vote a bill permitting the State Board of Education to adopt minimum standards for public pre-kindergarten schools. Also approved by the Senate was a House bill authorizing the director of transportation to cooperate with Kentucky to pay off bonds freeing the bridge across the Ohio River at Portsmouth from tolls.

Eight new bills were introduced in the House and one in the Senate, the latter a measure that would reactivate the Ohio Navy Militia which went out of existence 33 years ago.

Officers of the U.S. Navy Reserve would be enlisted to serve during floods and other emergencies along Ohio's rivers and lakes, under the proposal by Sen. Howard C. Cook, R-1 Toledo, and Donald L. Woodland, D-16 Columbus.

Among the new House bills was one by Rep. William E. Hinig, D-96 New Philadelphia, increasing the maximum amount of grants to public and private school students under the Instructional Grant Program. Annual grants for students of private schools would be hiked from $1,320 to $1,650 a year and these in public schools from $570 to $720.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices sagged today as traders took profits after the rally of the past two weeks.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 6.18 at 857.24, and gainers led losers 3 to 2 in light trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said they had expected some pullback after the steady rise which had carried the Dow to a gain of almost 60 points since Feb. 11. For the last 10 sessions in a row, advances have outnumbered declines on the Big Board.

Walter Kidde was the most active NYSE issue, down 1/4 at 15 1/4. A 120,000-share block of the issue changed hands at 15 1/4.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .01 at 97.36.

Other Big Board issues losing ground included several stocks which had risen sharply in recent sessions. U.S. Steel, which was a 1973-74 high Wednesday, was off 1 at 43 1/2.

Detention Facility Bids To Open

Construction bids will be opened April 10 at the Ross County Commissioners office for the construction of the South Central Regional Juvenile Detention Center which will be located in Ross County according to Grant McDonald, chairman of the six county executive committee.

The six counties involved are: Pickaway, Highland, Jackson, Pike, Vinton and Ross. Dick T. Tootle, county commissioner, represents Pickaway County on the committee.

Total estimated cost of the project is in excess of one half million dollars. The six counties will need to come up with a total cash contribution of only $34,000 for construction. The cash share for each county will be computed on the tax duplicate of each county. Ross county will be assessed the most with a tax duplicate of approximately $200 million.

This would be 32.5 per cent or approximately $11,050. Vinton County will have the smallest share, 4.4 per cent or approximately $1,496. Pickaway County will pay 29.1 per cent, Highland 13.9 per cent; Jackson 12.2 per cent and Pike, 7.9 per cent.

The center will have approximately 11,256 square feet of space and will be located on the same farm as the present Roweton Boys Ranch. The project director is Judge Gerald Radcliffe of Chillicothe. In addition to McDonald and Tootle, members of the committee are: Sam Hughes, Pike County; Joe Conger, Jackson County; Oween Harper, Vinton County; Howard Sprinkle, Highland County.

Rain, Snow Hammer Northwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Rain and high winds slashed through the northern half of the Pacific Coast today.

Winds up to 65 knots buffeted parts of the Oregon coast, where the town of North Bend received an inch of rain during the evening.

Storm warnings were in effect for the entire area.

Inland, heavy-snow warnings were posted for the northern Sierras and travelers were advised of blowing snow in the mountains of the Pacific Northwest and northern California.

Some snow also followed an invasion of cold air into the extreme northern Plains and the Lake Superior region.

Williston, N.D., was brushed by an inch of snow during the night, and wind gusts of 40 m.p.h. were clocked at Grand Forks.

A band of moist air produced cloudy skies from the western Gulf states through the lower Great Lakes and a weak cold front lowered temperatures from Oklahoma to Michigan.

Elsewhere, though, fair skies and mild weather prevailed.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 9 at Minot, N.D., to 66 at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Red Cross Seeking First Aid Teachers

Pickaway County Red Cross board members met Wednesday evening at the chapter house. Of all the areas requiring attention the most pressing is the need for instructors for new first aid courses.

Discussion concerned the Community Fund which is chaired this year by Dr. James River, volunteers to call former donors and recruit new persons for the Blood Bank, Red Cross month observance in memory of Clara Barton who started the organization during that month, flood and hurricane insurance, volunteers at Berger Hospital and the VA Hospital in Chillicothe and Hospital Day on May 5th at Chillicothe.

The next regular visit of the Bloodmobile will be in March and special visits are planned for Aug. 29 at the local DuPont plant and June 14 and Sept. 6 at Orient State Institution.

At the present time there are sufficient volunteer drivers to carry the increased load of persons availing themselves of the service. Transportation was provided for almost 80 persons during February by the 15 drivers.

Flood and hurricane insurance is now available to most people which will now ease the load of low cost government loans and disaster relief from the Red Cross.

It was noted that a volunteer is needed to assist at the reception desk of Berger Hospital on Saturday mornings and five adults are needed for the emergency rooms. On March 12 orientation for all volunteers is planned. On April 2 and 9 will be orientation at the Chillicothe V. A. Hospital from 9:30 a.m. until 2:15 p.m. and again on May 12 and 13 from 7-9:15 p.m.

Girl volunteers will serve as ushers for the "High Fever Follies" of Berger Hospital Guilds. Newly formed is a 4-H club calling itself the Good Neighbor Red Cross 4-H Club. Members will learn first aid, home nursing and with Girl Scouts will train for disaster relief. Leaders of the youth are Bonnie Hall, Barbara Leaker and Delores North.

Columbia Gas of Ohio customers in Circleville and three other Pickaway County communities will start paying more for their natural gas beginning April 1, it was announced today.

An adjustment of two and 33 one-hundredths cents per 1,000 cubic feet of gas used—resulting in an increase of about 35 cents a month for the average customer who heats with gas—will apply in Commercial Point.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices sagged today as traders took profits after the rally of the past two weeks.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 6.18 at 857.24, and gainers led losers 3 to 2 in light trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said they had expected some pullback after the steady rise which had carried the Dow to a gain of almost 60 points since Feb. 11. For the last 10 sessions in a row, advances have outnumbered declines on the Big Board.

Walter Kidde was the most active NYSE issue, down 1/4 at 15 1/4. A 120,000-share block of the issue changed hands at 15 1/4.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .01 at 97.36.

Other Big Board issues losing ground included several stocks which had risen sharply in recent sessions. U.S. Steel, which was a 1973-74 high Wednesday, was off 1 at 43 1/2.

Detention Facility Bids To Open

Construction bids will be opened April 10 at the Ross County Commissioners office for the construction of the South Central Regional Juvenile Detention Center which will be located in Ross County according to Grant McDonald, chairman of the six county executive committee.

The six counties involved are: Pickaway, Highland, Jackson, Pike, Vinton and Ross. Dick T. Tootle, county commissioner, represents Pickaway County on the committee.

Total estimated cost of the project is in excess of one half million dollars. The six counties will need to come up with a total cash contribution of only $34,000 for construction. The cash share for each county will be computed on the tax duplicate of each county. Ross county will be assessed the most with a tax duplicate of approximately $200 million.

This would be 32.5 per cent or approximately $11,050. Vinton County will have the smallest share, 4.4 per cent or approximately $1,496. Pickaway County will pay 29.1 per cent, Highland 13.9 per cent; Jackson 12.2 per cent and Pike, 7.9 per cent.

The center will have approximately 11,256 square feet of space and will be located on the same farm as the present Roweton Boys Ranch. The project director is Judge Gerald Radcliffe of Chillicothe. In addition to McDonald and Tootle, members of the committee are: Sam Hughes, Pike County; Joe Conger, Jackson County; Oween Harper, Vinton County; Howard Sprinkle, Highland County.

Rain, Snow Hammer Northwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Rain and high winds slashed through the northern half of the Pacific Coast today.

Winds up to 65 knots buffeted parts of the Oregon coast, where the town of North Bend received an inch of rain during the evening.

Storm warnings were in effect for the entire area.

Inland, heavy-snow warnings were posted for the northern Sierras and travelers were advised of blowing snow in the mountains of the Pacific Northwest and northern California.

Some snow also followed an invasion of cold air into the extreme northern Plains and the Lake Superior region.

Williston, N.D., was brushed by an inch of snow during the night, and wind gusts of 40 m.p.h. were clocked at Grand Forks.

A band of moist air produced cloudy skies from the western Gulf states through the lower Great Lakes and a weak cold front lowered temperatures from Oklahoma to Michigan.

Elsewhere, though, fair skies and mild weather prevailed.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 9 at Minot, N.D., to 66 at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Gilligan Signs Bridge Measure

The purpose of the law, authored by Rep. Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, is to make the bridge toll free.

Sen. Harry Armstrong, R-17 Logan, introduced in the Senate later in the day a bill that would provide for the lifting of tolls on the Ironton-Russell bridge across the same river.

Red Cross Seeking First Aid Teachers

Pickaway County Red Cross board members met Wednesday evening at the chapter house. Of all the areas requiring attention the most pressing is the need for instructors for new first aid courses.

Discussion concerned the Community Fund which is chaired this year by Dr. James River, volunteers to call former donors and recruit new persons for the Blood Bank, Red Cross month observance in memory of Clara Barton who started the organization during that month, flood and hurricane insurance, volunteers at Berger Hospital and the VA Hospital in Chillicothe and Hospital Day on May 5th at Chillicothe.

The next regular visit of the Bloodmobile will be in March and special visits are planned for Aug. 29 at the local DuPont plant and June 14 and

Judge Rules FAA Action Was Illegal

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge has ruled that the Federal Aviation Administration acted illegally when it gave airports permission to use X-ray machines as security devices at airports across the nation.

U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker ordered use of the machines halted Wednesday until the FAA files a statement certifying that use of the devices would not harm the environment.

Parker was to file his decision officially today.

Parker ruled that the FAA acted illegally because it failed to permit affected persons to comment on its action before it took effect last March 29.

Use of the X-ray machines was challenged by the Aviation Consumer Action Project, a group associated with Ralph Nader. The group contended that the machines posed an unknown health hazard because of a lack of safety standards.

Several hundred such machines were said to be in use nationwide, although their use is not mandatory.

Columbia Gas of Ohio customers in Circleville and three other Pickaway County communities will start paying more for their natural gas beginning April 1, it was announced today.

An adjustment of two and 33 one-hundredths cents per 1,000 cubic feet of gas used—resulting in an increase of about 35 cents a month for the average customer who heats with gas—will apply in Commercial Point.

The adjustments reflect an increase in the cost of gas to Columbia Gas of Ohio from its supplier. Rates of 316 Ohio communities are being adjusted under provisions of their contracts with the gas company.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Hubby's Tatoo Was Kid Stuff

DEAR ABBY: I have some advise for Rosemary whose husband had "Helen" tattooed on his chest:
Don't worry. For the last three years I've been resting my head on my husband's chest every night, and I see "Patsy" staring me in the face. (My name is Marie.)
It was nothing serious-just a kid romance. He was 16, and she was 14 at the time. He says he wishes he could remove that tattoo now but it's too expensive and too painful, so I just keep reminding myself that I had three kids by a previous marriage when he married me so he must have loved me a lot.

He has been wonderful to me, and a terrific father to my kids, so I'm not going to let a little thing like "Patsy" on his chest bother me. Sign me...

LUCKIER THAN PATSY
DEAR LUCKIER: You're luckier than you thought. I'm informed that Dr. Gary Manchester of San Diego came up with a new technique for removing unwanted tattoos. It's called

RFK Made 1st Contact With Soviets

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — Russian diplomats bypassed the State Department and made their first contact with President-elect John F. Kennedy in 1960 through his brother, Robert, according to newly opened documents.

Most of the 10,000 documents in Robert F. Kennedy's files at the Federal Records Center which were opened to public inspection Wednesday dealt with the 1960 campaign and its immediate aftermath.

Some also focused on civil rights issues during Robert Kennedy's tenure as attorney general.

The Russian liaison dates from Dec. 12, 1960, when Robert Kennedy lunched with Soviet Ambassador Mikhail A. Menshikov, at the Russian's invitation. Kennedy summarized the meeting, the first of many between the President's brother and the Russians, in a Dec. 18 memorandum to Dean Kusk, who was to become secretary of state.

Kennedy told Rusk in the memo that Menshikov wanted the President-elect to know that Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev "admired Sen. Kennedy's intelligence and vigor and believed that it was now possible to have a clear and friendly understanding between the U.S.S.R. and the U.S."

The memo also quoted the Soviet ambassador as saying that the Soviet Union "had no objection to Berlin remaining free under the United Nations."

"salabrasion," and it's supposedly the cheapest and easiest method, and leaves no scars. Briefly, it's done by rubbing table salt into the tattoo. (Don't try to do it yourself-consult a doctor!) It's approved by the California Medical Association. Now if your husband wants to salt Patsy away permanently he can rub salt into the wound.

DEAR ABBY: I am having a terrible time with my landlady. You see I get this room for only $30 a month, and it is big and airy and near my work, and I can't afford to move.

The landlady likes me too much. I'm 28, and she is old enough to be my mother. The other morning I woke up and she was standing over me watching me sleep! (She has her own key.)

If I clean up the yard she hugs and kisses me so much I can hardly get away from her. (I think she drinks a little.) When I pay the rent she always asks me to stay and visit a while, then she gets kissy with me.

I don't want to insult her or she'll kick me out, so what do you suggest?
NERVOUS

DEAR NERVOUS: Do your best to keep her at arms length. And get a chain for your door to keep her out while you're in.

DEAR ABBY: For reasons too numerous to mention I never learned to drive a car and I don't care to. I have always provided my own transportation and have never imposed upon my friends to drive me places.

My problem is having to defend myself against people who first ask me how come I never learned how to drive, and then give me a long lecture on how "foolish" I am for not learning. I feel it's really none of their business as long as I don't ask them to chauffeur me around.

DOESN'T DRIVE
DEAR DOESN'T: Tell them-exactly the way you told me.

Butz Expects Wheat Supply To Be OK

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The price of wheat futures shows there is no expected shortage of wheat, Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz said Wednesday.

Butz said wheat futures for delivery in May and July are less than March futures, meaning wheat investors expect no shortage.

Butz was responding to members of the American Bakers Association, who contended earlier this week the nation will run out of wheat this spring.

The ABA is predicting a 23 million bushel deficit. Butz said he expects a 170 million bushel surplus when the summer crop comes in this July.

He said if the bakers' believed their own versions of the wheat situation, they would be buying wheat futures at the current prices for delivery during the shortage.

"They'd make a killing" if they were right, Butz said. "But they don't believe it."

He said May wheat is selling at 10 cents a bushel less than March wheat, and July wheat is selling at 60 cents a bushel below March wheat.

A genuine approaching shortage would send spring wheat futures sky high, he said.

The ABA is seeking export controls to keep wheat from leaving the country. Butz said the controls aren't needed.

"We're in a tight situation compared to past years, but there will be plenty of wheat to get through the year," Butz said.

Butz also attacked U. S. Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., who took the side of the bakers in Washington.

"He's been bitten by a virus called 'Presidentitis,'" Butz said. "He's turned his back on the wheat farmers in his own state for the sake of publicity."

full 303-member Democratic National Committee on Friday.

The controversies involve the extent to which the principle of proportional representation should be applied and the expected proposal by National Chairman Robert S. Strauss for an expansion of the proposed 17-member Compliance Review Commission.

The rules and the compliance commission plan being considered by the Executive Committee were developed by a party commission headed by Baltimore Councilwoman Barbara Mikulski.

At the time her commission agreed unanimously on its proposals last October, representatives of both reform and regular party factions compromised on several issues in the interests of unity.

Since then, however, the proportional representation plan, which would guarantee representation for all candidates who get at least 10 per cent of the delegates at the precinct level, has come under fire from organized labor and other groups.

Many fear it will lead to a proliferation of minor candidates and so divide delegate strength to create a deadlocked convention.

The Mikulski commission proposal is backed by reform elements and supporters of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, who feel their strength is so widespread that they would benefit from the proportional representation plan.

The Wallace supporters, however, oppose the 17-member compliance plan and hope to dilute some of its powers.

Strauss has yet to announce his choices for five spots on the commission, which currently has eight members of the Mikulski commission, all but one considered reformers, and Rep. James G. O'Hara, D-Mich., representing the House.

Hubby's Tatoo Was Kid Stuff

DEAR ABBY: I have some advise for Rosemary whose husband had "Helen" tottoed on his chest:

Don't worry. For the last three years I've been resting my head on my husband's chest every night, and I see "Patsy" staring me in the face. (My name is Marie.)

It was nothing serious-just a kid romance. He was 16, and she was 14 at the time. He says he wishes he could remove that tattoo now but it's too expensive and too painful, so I just keep reminding myself that I had three kids by a previous marriage when he married me so he must have loved me a lot.

He has been wonderful to me, and a terrific father to my kids, so I'm not going to let a little thing like "Patsy" on his chest bother me. Sign me...

RFK Made 1st Contact With Soviets

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — Russian diplomats bypassed the State Department and made their first contact with President-elect John F. Kennedy in 1960 through his brother, Robert, according to newly opened documents.

Most of the 10,000 documents in Robert F. Kennedy's files at the Federal Records Center which were opened to public inspection Wednesday dealt with the 1960 campaign and its immediate aftermath.

Some also focused on civil rights issues during Robert Kennedy's tenure as attorney general.

The Russian liaison dates from Dec. 12, 1960, when Robert Kennedy lunched with Soviet Ambassador Mikhail A. Menshikov, at the Russian's invitation.

Kennedy summarized the meeting, the first of many between the President's brother and the Russians, in a Dec. 18 memorandum to Dean Rusk, who was to become secretary of state.

Kennedy told Rusk in the memo that Menshikov wanted the President-elect to know that Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev "admired Sen. Kennedy's intelligence and vigor and believed that it was now possible to have a clear and friendly understanding between the U.S.S.R. and the U.S."

The memo also quoted the Soviet ambassador as saying that the Soviet Union "had no objection to Berlin remaining free under the United Nations."

Butz Expects Wheat Supply To Be OK

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The price of wheat futures shows there is no expected shortage of wheat, Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz said Wednesday.

Butz said wheat futures for delivery in May and July are less than March futures, meaning wheat investors expect no shortage.

Butz was responding to members of the American Bakers Association, who contended earlier this week the nation will run out of wheat this spring.

The ABA is predicting a 23 million bushel deficit. Butz said he expects a 170 million bushel surplus when the summer crop comes in this July.

He said if the bakers' believed their own versions of the wheat situation, they would be buying wheat futures at the current prices for delivery during the shortage.

"They'd make a killing" if they were right, Butz said. "But they don't believe it."

He said May wheat is selling at 10 cents a bushel less than March wheat, and July wheat is selling at 60 cents a bushel below March wheat.

A genuine approaching shortage would send spring wheat futures sky high, he said.

The ABA is seeking export controls to keep wheat from leaving the country. Butz said the controls aren't needed.

"We're in a tight situation compared to past years, but there will be plenty of wheat to get through the year," Butz said.

Butz also attacked U. S. Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., who took the side of the bakers in Washington.

"He's been bitten by a virus called 'Presidentitis,'" Butz said. "He's turned his back on the wheat farmers in his own state for the sake of publicity."

Harnessing Tides

Long before science discovered the gigantic power of nuclear energy, it spent long hours searching for a source of perpetual energy. Like a clock which requires no electricity or winding, remember?

With the advent of new sources of abundant energy such as the atom and cheap petroleum, perpetual motion seemed a lost cause. With one exception. Nature provides many sources of power which are not only abundantly available but inexpensive, if the intricacies of harnessing can be overcome.

That "if" can be an elusive goal. One of the oldest forms of natural perpetual energy is the ebb and flow of the tides and man has long dreamed of harnessing this action to produce power.

A breakthrough anywhere would hasten the day when many countries would take advantage of their tidal inlets and sea-coasts to harness the movement of the oceans.

Ever since 1919 engineers have been squabbling over the possibilities of generating power by channeling the waters of the Passamaquoddy Bay on the United States-Canadian border. Because of the energy shortage, Passamaquoddy and a number of similar sites throughout the world will see renewed activity by scientists seeking "effortless" energy.

No Violence To Animals

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — And now the good news. Jack Valenti, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, has asked what's left of the U.S. filmmakers to stop tripping horses, sticking bulls, shooting coyotes and mistreating dogs and cats.

In a memo to the industry, Valenti began with a compliment which a great many animal lovers may find startling:

"For decades the motion picture industry's system of self-regulation has embraced the principle that animals shall be humanely treated on and off camera during production."

"The record over the years — and today — is highly commendable. It is the exception and not the rule when animals involved in films are misused or killed for the sake of 'reality' in a picture."

"In more recent times (Ed. Note: More recent than today?) departures by a few from this principle of humaneness have sullied the industry's record. Cruelty to animals should be avoided so that it might be said of every motion picture: 'No animal was cruelly treated or killed in making this film.'"

Another fast shift: "The program I am suggesting is voluntary. Each filmmaker makes his own choice. The only compulsion is individual conscience..."

Well, that takes care of that. Appealing to the conscience of the average picture-maker today is an exercise in futility that passeth delineation.

So maybe we'll soon be seeing a new set of ratings. Such as ATK for Animals Treated Kindly, or OTHKICC, meaning Only Ten Horses Killed in Cavalry Charge. Or BBHK, Blood by Heinz's Ketchup.

Valenti's memo had something for everybody, including animal trainers who make a living renting the studios every kind of beast from aardvarks to zebras.

"This policy (or humane treatment) should result in no diminution in the use of animals or their employment in ways that would create the necessary appearance of reality on the screen," Valenti wrote. "I am informed that trained animals are available which can perform with realism and without danger of injury or death."

That must be the horse who feigns a back somersault off Pike's Peak. Or gets hit by all the bullets that miss John Wayne.

Anyway, it's a good try on Valenti's part. Movies can now concentrate on killing people.

The world's most unconventional gardener must sure be James Cardoza who tends a tropical garden on a four-story hill in the lobby of the Crown Center Hotel, Kansas City, Mo.

(Take time out for a breath, after that.)

Cardoza has had to add mountain climbing to the horticulture degree he earned at the University of Massachusetts. His garden, just off the main lobby of the striking new hotel, is slanted at an angle of 45 degrees. There is a chance of his being drowned, too, because a waterfall courses through his lush cliffside jungle and plunges into a bubbling pool. The pool supports life in water: iris, stalks of Egyptian papyrus — and, until its untimely death, Cardoza's pet catfish.

He tends 25 varieties of plants, among them weeping fig trees, Aspidistra, Philodendron, evergreen fig vines, baby tears and white sails. Last Christmas he replaced his marigolds with 110 potted remains at 72 degrees, and gets the equivalent of one inch of rain a week.

The garden has become the major tourist attraction in Crown Center, a 50-building, city-within-Kansas City owned and developed by Hallmark Cards, Inc. Its popularity sometimes involves problems. One pre-dawn morning, Cardoza discovered an elderly gentleman with rod and reel trying to catch the aforementioned catfish. Nice old ladies occasionally give him problems. They steal his exotic flowers; but that crime rate has fallen off sharply since Cardoza began shouting, "God is watching you!" as the ladies start reaching.

Martha Mitchell told John Cruber of the N.Y. Post that her husband, the former Attorney-General who is now on trial in one of the offshoots of Watergate, "He could go to hell... A month ago I still felt sorry for him. Now I don't. I don't feel sorry for him in the slightest. I don't care if I ever see him again..."

Makes a jail term seem inviting.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

As a result of the events after the Teays Valley-Circleville basketball game we have decided to write this letter.

Everyone talks about the bad incidents that happen after every football and basketball game between these two great rivals. We feel it is time to awaken the public to how the wrestling teams act toward each other.

First of all at the recent sectional meet the two teams warmed up together before the meet started. This brought many eyes our way because the opposing teams weren't organized but we were. The members of each team cheer for the others except when we oppose each other.

We feel that with all this talk about these bad incidents, the students of both schools and parents from both communities should attend the district wrestling meet at Licking Heights this Saturday and see what sportsmanship really is.

Dear Editor:

Americans are not a nation of quitters. These words were spoken by the President of the United States of America, Feb. 18, in Huntsville, Ala.

The American people never were quitters at any time in our history and we need not be reminded.

The people are not obsessed with the country's faults, nor will they forget its virtues.

The American people feel those in charge of our government in both houses of Congress and the national administration have ignored their responsibility in carrying out the mandate of the people.

Those who have the responsibility to carry out the working duty at the White House were hired with a clean bill of health. They became corrupted and finally discharged. Some of them have been indicted and will stand trial.

The American people were always united. During the two years wasted investigating the Watergate, Congress failed to see the energy crisis coming. They will lose another year trying to remove President Nixon from office because the president continues to work hard for peace in the world and prosperity at home.

$1.5 Million To Be Sent For Gilligan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan will spend $1.5 million in his campaign for re-election in 1974, and every penny received and spent will be reported, his chief campaign official said today.

Eugene O'Grady, Gilligan's campaign chairman, said $500,000 will be spent on the May primary, and $1 million for the general election in November.

"All contributions from a penny up will be reported," O'Grady said. "Any anonymous donation will be given to charity."

He made the statements at a news conference to outline Gilligan's campaign finance guidelines.

O'Grady called the guidelines a strict set of rules.

He said campaign statements will be made before and after each election, and will be filed with the Ohio secretary of state and with Common Cause, a public interest lobby group.

The guidelines are: —Establishment of a single political and finance committee, called "Ohioans for Gilligan."

O'Grady said the committee will receive all contributions, make all expenditures and account and report for all of them.

—Disclosure of all campaign contributions and expenditures before and after each election.

—Cash contributions of more than $100 will not be accepted from any individual or committee.

—Individual contributions will be limited to no more than $3,000 each for the primary and general elections.

—The committee will not spend more than five cents times the population of the state for the primary election, $500,000, and 10 cents times the population for the general election, $1 million.

O'Grady said the campaign committee has $140,000 in the till at this time.

He said the first campaign finance report will be made sometime early in April. He added that no exact date has been set.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Since my husband gave up smoking tobacco because of a circulation problem he has been drinking more alcohol than I think is good for him.

He insists that he read or that someone told him that alcohol is good for the heart and it helps the blood circulation.

I find that I worry more about the alcohol than I did about tobacco. Some wives just can't win.

Mrs. B.N., Mich.

Dear Mrs. N.:

The questions you raise are of extreme importance to a great many people who, too, are confused about the effect of tobacco and alcohol on the heart and the circulatory system.

First, let me emphasize the fact that smoking tobacco is undoubtedly one of the leading causes of heart, lung, circulatory diseases, and cancer.

Toxins in tobacco constrict, or narrow, large and small blood vessels, thus depriving organs of adequate blood and oxygen.

The tiny coronary arteries that bring blood to the heart muscle itself cannot always withstand a decrease in the blood supply. Heart attacks frequently result.

Alcohol in large quantities can be toxic to the heart. In smaller quantities, whiskey can be responsible for a slight increase in the blood flow through the coronary arteries. Herein lies the answer to some of the confusion that exists.

To repeat, small amounts of alcohol may increase the blood supply and stimulate circulatory activity. Large quantities of alcohol can be detrimental to blood circulation.

Dr. Richard J. Bing, director of cardiology at Huntington Memorial Hospital in Pasadena, Calif., wrote in the excellent medical magazine, Consultant, "The biochemical effects of alcohol on the heart muscle are pronounced."

In a complex scientific explanation Dr. Bing points out the toxic damage of alcohol on the liver, the heart and the entire vascular system.

Because your husband was mature enough to accept the Surgeon General's warning that tobacco is dangerous to the health should not induce him to substitute another toxic poison.

Moderation in the amount of alcohol he takes may be the key to his good health.

Such a compromise with alcohol is possible. There is, however, no such compromise with the use of tobacco which, even in small quantities, is distinctly hazardous.

Rhodes May Talk With KSU Jury

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Justice Department attorneys still aren't saying whether former Gov. James A. Rhodes will be called to testify before the federal grand jury investigating the 1970 Kent State University shootings.

Rhodes' former chief aide, John McElroy, said Wednesday that Rhodes would prefer having a chance to testify. McElroy told newsmen after appearing before the grand jury Wednesday he couldn't testify about many of Rhodes' actions in May, 1970, because the governor dealt directly with most of the officials involved.

It was McElroy who drew up the proclamation issued by Rhodes to order Ohio National Guard (ONG) troops to the campus May 2, 1970, after the Army Reserve Officers Training Corps was burned by antiwar demonstrators.

Two days later, four students were shot to death and nine were wounded in a confrontation with guardsmen.

McElroy said jurors asked him for memorandums he wrote concerning the Kent State incident, but he said he had thrown them away.

"I once had a voluminous file," he said, but "when a memorandum lost its usefulness, I threw it away."

Also called to testify were Col. Robert Maxwell, the military support officer for the ONG, and Brig. Gen. Gordon Peltier of Columbus, who said he wrote the guard's official report on the Kent State incident.

Peltier said he spent 3½ hours before the jury in a session that lasted until 7:30 p.m. Peltier, who now is commander of the 16th Engineering Brigade, was the ONG inspector general at the time of the shootings.

He told newsmen the jury questioned him about his report but he refused to discuss the testimony.

He told newsmen the jury questioned him about his report but he refused to discuss the testimony.

He said he had been waiting since Monday to testify, but the jury kept calling witnesses ahead of him.

Cloudy with a chance of showers tonight. Lows in the mid and upper 30s. Partly cloudy and cooler Friday. Highs in the 40s.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Milder air flowing up from the south brought warmer weather and a cloud cover over the state Wednesday night and early Thursday, holding temperatures in the 40s. Early Thursday Findlay had the low with 40 degrees and Marietta the high at 48.

Moisture was increasing over the state and there is a chance of some of it precipitating today in the form of showers, especially in the afternoon as the leading edge of cooler air pushes in from the west.

On the weather map Thursday morning a low pressure center over Lake Superior with a cold front southward through Wisconsin and Illinois was moving eastward. By Friday morning the low is expected in the lower St. Lawrence Valley, with the cold front southwestward through the central Appalachians.

Cooler air will move over the state tonight, making Friday a cooler day with little chance of precipitation except for a chance of snow flurries over northeastern Ohio. The mercury is expected to dip into the 30s tonight then recover to the upper 30s and 40s. Generally fair weather was expected to begin the weekend.

So maybe we'll soon be seeing a new set of ratings. Such as ATK for Animals Treated Kindly, or OTHKICC, meaning Only Ten Horses Killed in Cavalry Charge. Or BBHK, Blood by Heinz's Ketchup.

Valenti's memo had something for everybody, including animal trainers who make a living renting the studios every kind of beast from aardvarks to zebras.

"This policy (or humane treatment) should result in no diminution in the use of animals or their employment in ways that would create the necessary appearance of reality on the screen," Valenti wrote. "I am informed that trained animals are available which can perform with realism and without danger of injury or death."

That must be the horse who feigns a back somersault off Pike's Peak. Or gets hit by all the bullets that miss John Wayne.

Anyway, it's a good try on Valenti's part. Movies can now concentrate on killing people.

The world's most unconventional gardener must sure be James Cardoza who tends a tropical garden on a four-story hill in the lobby of the Crown Center Hotel, Kansas City, Mo.

(Take time out for a breath, after that.)

Cardoza has had to add mountain climbing to the horticulture degree he earned at the University of Massachusetts. His garden, just off the main lobby of the striking new hotel, is slanted at an angle of 45 degrees. There is a chance of his being drowned, too, because a waterfall courses through his lush cliffside jungle and plunges into a bubbling pool. The pool supports life in water: iris, stalks of Egyptian papyrus — and, until its untimely death, Cardoza's pet catfish.

He tends 25 varieties of plants, among them weeping fig trees, Aspidistra, Philodendron, evergreen fig vines, baby tears and white sails. Last Christmas he replaced his marigolds with 110 potted remains at 72 degrees, and gets the equivalent of one inch of rain a week.

The garden has become the major tourist attraction in Crown Center, a 50-building, city-within-Kansas City owned and developed by Hallmark Cards, Inc. Its popularity sometimes involves problems. One pre-dawn morning, Cardoza discovered an elderly gentleman with rod and reel trying to catch the aforementioned catfish. Nice old ladies occasionally give him problems. They steal his exotic flowers; but that crime rate has fallen off sharply since Cardoza began shouting, "God is watching you!" as the ladies start reaching.

Martha Mitchell told John Cruber of the N.Y. Post that her husband, the former Attorney-General who is now on trial in one of the offshoots of Watergate, "He could go to hell... A month ago I still felt sorry for him. Now I don't. I don't feel sorry for him in the slightest. I don't care if I ever see him again..."

Makes a jail term seem inviting.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

As a result of the events after the Teays Valley-Circleville basketball game we have decided to write this letter.

Everyone talks about the bad incidents that happen after every football and basketball game between these two great rivals. We feel it is time to awaken the public to how the wrestling teams act toward each other.

First of all at the recent sectional meet the two teams warmed up together before the meet started. This brought many eyes our way because the opposing teams weren't organized but we were. The members of each team cheer for the others except when we oppose each other.

We feel that with all this talk about these bad incidents, the students of both schools and parents from both communities should attend the district wrestling meet at Licking Heights this Saturday and see what sportsmanship really is.

Dear Editor:

I am writing this letter in regard to the closing of Bowling Stockyards. This is a big loss to Pickaway County.

Over the past 12 years they have conducted the sales for our 4-H calves and FFA stock for the top dollar. In fact, it has been one of the top junior fair sales in the state.

Our family has dealt with the late Frank Bowling and Bowling Stockyards for many years and has always received a top price. I have known the Bowling family for 35 years and they are an asset to Pickaway County.

Very truly yours

Dear Editor:

Americans are not a nation of quitters. These words were spoken by the President of these United States of America, Feb. 18, in Huntsville, Ala.

The American people never were quitters at any time in our history and we need not be reminded.

The people are not obsessed with the country's faults, nor will they forget its virtues.

The American people feel those in charge of our government in both houses of Congress and the national administration have ignored their responsibility in carrying out the mandate of the people.

Those who have the responsibility to carry out the working duty at the White House were hired with a clean bill of health. They became corrupted and finally discharged. Some of them have been indicted and will stand trial.

The American people were always united. During the two years wasted investigating the Watergate, Congress failed to see the energy crisis coming. They will lose another year trying to remove President Nixon from office because the president continues to work hard for peace in the world and prosperity at home.

Today is Thursday, Feb. 28, the 59th day of 1974. There are 306 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1942, during the Pacific war, the Japanese invaded Java, the last Allied bastion in the Dutch East Indies.

On this date:

In 1483, the Italian painter, Raphael, was born in Urbino, Italy.

In 1808, the French captured Barcelona, Spain.

In 1933, a Nazi decree suppressed civil liberties in Germany.

In 1952, Vincent Massey was sworn in as the first nativeborn governor-general of Canada.

In 1966, astronauts Elliot See Jr. and Charles Bassett were killed when their jet trainer crashed into the roof of an aircraft plant in St. Louis.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Since my husband gave up smoking tobacco because of a circulation problem he has been drinking more alcohol than I think is good for him.

He insists that he read or that someone told him that alcohol is good for the heart and it helps the blood circulation.

I find that I worry more about the alcohol than I did about tobacco. Some wives just can't win.

Mrs. B.N., Mich.

Dear Mrs. N.:

The questions you raise are of extreme importance to a great many people who, too, are confused about the effect of tobacco and alcohol on the heart and the circulatory system.

First, let me emphasize the fact that smoking tobacco is undoubtedly one of the leading causes of heart, lung, circulatory diseases, and cancer.

Toxins in tobacco constrict, or narrow, large and small blood vessels, thus depriving organs of adequate blood and oxygen.

The tiny coronary arteries that bring blood to the heart muscle itself cannot always withstand a decrease in the blood supply. Heart attacks frequently result.

Alcohol in large quantities can be toxic to the heart. In smaller quantities, whiskey can be responsible for a slight increase in the blood flow through the coronary arteries. Herein lies the answer to some of the confusion that exists.

To repeat, small amounts of alcohol may increase the blood supply and stimulate circulatory activity. Large quantities of alcohol can be detrimental to blood circulation.

Dr. Richard J. Bing, director of cardiology at Huntington Memorial Hospital in Pasadena, Calif., wrote in the excellent medical magazine, Consultant, "The biochemical effects of alcohol on the heart muscle are pronounced."

In a complex scientific explanation Dr. Bing points out the toxic damage of alcohol on the liver, the heart and the entire vascular system.

Because your husband was mature enough to accept the Surgeon General's warning that tobacco is dangerous to the health should not induce him to substitute another toxic poison.

Moderation in the amount of alcohol he takes may be the key to his good health.

Such a compromise with alcohol is possible. There is, however, no such compromise with the use of tobacco which, even in small quantities, is distinctly hazardous.

Rhodes May Talk With KSU Jury

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Justice Department attorneys still aren't saying whether former Gov. James A. Rhodes will be called to testify before the federal grand jury investigating the 1970 Kent State University shootings.

Rhodes' former chief aide, John McElroy, said Wednesday that Rhodes would prefer having a chance to testify. McElroy told newsmen after appearing before the grand jury Wednesday he couldn't testify about many of Rhodes' actions in May, 1970, because the governor dealt directly with most of the officials involved.

It was McElroy who drew up the proclamation issued by Rhodes to order Ohio National Guard (ONG) troops to the campus May 2, 1970, after the Army Reserve Officers Training Corps was burned by antiwar demonstrators.

Two days later, four students were shot to death and nine were wounded in a confrontation with guardsmen.

McElroy said jurors asked him for memorandums he wrote concerning the Kent State incident, but he said he had thrown them away.

"I once had a voluminous file," he said, but "when a memorandum lost its usefulness, I threw it away."

Also called to testify were Col. Robert Maxwell, the military support officer for the ONG, and Brig. Gen. Gordon Peltier of Columbus, who said he wrote the guard's official report on the Kent State incident.

Peltier said he spent 3½ hours before the jury in a session that lasted until 7:30 p.m. Peltier, who now is commander of the 16th Engineering Brigade, was the ONG inspector general at the time of the shootings.

He told newsmen the jury questioned him about his report but he refused to discuss the testimony.

He told newsmen the jury questioned him about his report but he refused to discuss the testimony.

He said he had been waiting since Monday to testify, but the jury kept calling witnesses ahead of him.

Cloudy with a chance of showers tonight. Lows in the mid and upper 30s. Partly cloudy and cooler Friday. Highs in the 40s.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Milder air flowing up from the south brought warmer weather and a cloud cover over the state Wednesday night and early Thursday, holding temperatures in the 40s. Early Thursday Findlay had the low with 40 degrees and Marietta the high at 48.

Moisture was increasing over the state and there is a chance of some of it precipitating today in the form of showers, especially in the afternoon as the leading edge of cooler air pushes in from the west.

On the weather map Thursday morning a low pressure center over Lake Superior with a cold front southward through Wisconsin and Illinois was moving eastward. By Friday morning the low is expected in the lower St. Lawrence Valley, with the cold front southwestward through the central Appalachians.

Cooler air will move over the state tonight, making Friday a cooler day with little chance of precipitation except for a chance of snow flurries over northeastern Ohio. The mercury is expected to dip into the 30s tonight then recover to the upper 30s and 40s. Generally fair weather was expected to begin the weekend.

Let me say at the outset that if this bit of jabberwocky seems a bit more rambling than usual we will put all the blame on the most excruciating headache it has fallen my lot to ever have. And no, I can't do this some other time because this is one of the busiest weeks we've had around here in a while.

Heaps and heaps of praise to the young people who braved the elements this past Sunday and went door to door in our village collecting for the 1974 Heart Fund drive. They successfully received donations of $209.04 which was generous giving on the part of our citizenry and they are to be gratefully thanked for their response. The roads proved to be too hazardous in the rural area so those volunteers were encouraged to do their calling some time this week through next Sunday.

Canvassing the town were Pam Cook, Susan Greene, DeeAnne Clark, Crystal Metzger, Debbie Rigsby, Kelly McCafferty, Lollipop (Faith Ann) Picklesimer, Shana Wills, Cindy Schleich, Amy Easterday, Cindy Hamman, David McClure, Kathy Schleich, T-Bird (Teresa) Graffis, Jeff Reed, Brian Wisecup, and may the saints forgive me if I have inadvertently forgotten anyone. Traveling in duo or trio these young folks did a tremendous job and are to be highly commended.

Volunteers in the township area who may have already called at your home or will shortly are Shirley and Vicki Thompson, Marabel, Sandy and Connie Drummond and Candy Commeans.

Gospel Sing

The countdown hours have begun for the fourth annual Gospel Sing sponsored by the Monroe Mens Club to be held Saturday, 7:30 p.m. in the Westfall auditorium. The Mens Club is well known for the many worthwhile community causes they support and they in turn deserve all the support the community can give to them.

It is a two-fold enjoyment in as much as you will not only be contributing to an organization that does many good things but you will hear an evening of truly great music provided by the Crusaders, Bob Wills and the Inspirationalists (from Texas) and coming from Nashville, Tenn., the Hallelujah Minstrels — all three groups much respected for excellence in their field.

Recently returned from a Texas trip are Cotton and Helen Timmons and the Paul Morgans (Circleville residents). They guested with Helen's daughter and Paul's sister and her spouse, Mildred "Sis" Morgan Peters and Bob at McAllen, Texas.

This is right on the Texas-Mexico border so it was a natural for our folks to do a bit of shopping and sightseeing down Mexico way, too. They also spent some time with relatives in Louisiana. The Timmons were Saturday evening dinner guests in our home and enjoyed meeting our Celia and houseguest Yara Helena Silva. Yara is with a family at New Bremen. She, too, is from Brazil—the capital city of Sao Paulo in Sao Paulo state.

On Thursday, Celia, Amy and myself had driven to Piqua and overnighted with my sister Norma, her sidekick John and their doll Jo Lynne. Friday we met Yara and her Ohio papa at the Piqua Mall and Yara then accompanied us to our home where she delighted us until Poppy Bill and I took Celia and Yara to Columbus airport early Sunday a.m. where they boarded a jet for Phoenix, Arizona and a six-day tour of Grand Canyon, Palm Springs, Disneyland and other exciting sights westward ho.

They will return Friday evening and it will be our joy to hear them relate their experiences and impressions with their bubbling enthusiasm.

Marvie baby and his Dolly Thompson and their Shirley and Brad journeyed to Mt. Gilead Saturday for a get together with good friends Roger and Sue Beck, Stacey and Michael. Accompanying the Thompsons were their weekend guests Wayne and Pat Fry and youngsters Renee and Julie of Streeter, Ill.

The Frys are former residents of our area and being a bit nostalgic for old friends and scenes they drove this way. When they left Sunday they were very much aware that even though it was snowing quite hard here there was already twelve inches of the white stuff at their home base.

Our nephew, David McClure of Londonderry, divided his weekend time between our home and that of John Graffis.

Glancing out my window on occasion during the weekend I noticed that my neighbor Mrs. Bertha Porter and her companion Lillian Hess had visitors one evening of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Trump (Mrs. B's daughter) of Circleville and another time son Herman Porter of the Five Points area. The Herman Porters are just recently returned from a Florida vacation.

Our Amy returned to school Monday after being "under the weather" for several days. Chicken pox victims R. V. Hamman and Mike Debo are trying to make the best of a trying situation.

Baptism

Baptismal services are always quite special but for our minister, the Rev. Richard Crosby and his Marybelle, they became extra special and meaningful this past Sunday when the Rev. Crosby officiated at the baptism of his granddaughter Chellene Rae Hitchcock, three months old and his grandniece Elizabeth Ann Neely, eight months old.

Chellene and her parents Richard and Collene of Grover Hill were Friday until Monday members of the Crosby household. Elizabeth Ann and her family, Dr. J. L. and Mrs. Neely, Danny and Andrew of Fairborn, grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Al Haas of Dayton and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Neely (Marybelle's very much look alike sister) of Antwerp arrived Sunday morning.

They were all guests of the Crosbys for Sunday dinner before returning to their respective homes in the late afternoon. Chellene and Elizabeth were attired in lovely long white christening dresses for the baptism that took place during regular worship hour at the Williamsport United Methodist Church.

Four years old going on five Sandra Phillips of Oakwood kept things perky at the parsonage from Tuesday until Monday when she returned to her home as the Hitchcocks went to their home. Sandra had come here with grandparents the Rev. Richard and Marybelle after they had visited with the Phillips family Monday and Tuesday.

Well, folks, it is still a neck and neck challenge for first place between L-K and Lawsons of the Morning Glories League at the Circle D bowling alley on Tuesday morning. Had Air Circle been more cooperative this past Tuesday and let L-K win at least one more game then the pressure wouldn't be so great (insert a laugh here). All I can say to Betty Fausnaugh, Aletta Conkright, Paula Compher and Ann Hoffman is Tsk! Tsk!

On the subject of bowling, our Celia bowled for her very first time (compliments of good guy—Larry Dietrich) last Wednesday and what a "bowl" (corn, corn) she had. She is hoping to try at least once more before that not-at-all-looked-forward-to day of departure for her homeland.

The many friends of "Babe" List grieve deeply his departure from our midst. No more the ready smile, the gently joshing wit, the twinkling merriment ever present in his eyes. His deep interest in everything, especially school activities and his love of travel have been stilled for

Economic Indicators Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's business indicators index rebounded sharply in January after the steepest decline in 23 years in December, the Commerce Department reported today.

The business indicators are supposed to forecast future performance in the economy.

The index rose 2 per cent in January on the basis of preliminary figures, following a 2.7 per cent decline in December. The January increase was the largest monthly gain since August 1972, when the index rose 2.5 per cent.

The rise in the index in January could give support to the President's pledge to avoid a recession in the United States this year.

However, the indicators have been characterized by erratic behavior in recent months.

The January figures are subject to revision when later and final information is received.

Air Quality Index Proves Useful

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A 45-year-old factory worker, long hospitalized in Steubenville for a respiratory ailment but now recovered, eagerly awaited his scheduled release.

Suddenly, his doctor said the worker wasn't going home that day.

The physician had learned that the air quality over Steubenville, long a center of industrial pollution problems, had worsened in the last 24 hours. Hot, muggy weather had firmly gripped industrial and automobile pollution so that it didn't blow away.

Conditions outside the hospital faced the factory worker with a relapse.

His physician decided to release his patient after the air had cleared up.

Doctors, hospitals and just plain citizens know the quality of their air these days because of a program begun by the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency last May. The program is called the air quality index.

Noreen Wills, Ohio EPA spokeswoman, said the air quality index has been well received in the state.

"A lot of hospitals were glad to see it," she said. "They can use it to determine if a respiratory patient is ready to go home. The hospital also can tell when to expect the emergency room to be flooded with people suffering from breathing problems."

She said those at home can use the index to decide if they can safely go outside without coughing and wheezing.

"You can't go out and just sniff to see if the air is dirty," she said. "The index is a simple and above board procedure which tells people what they are breathing."

The EPA has used the index to issue pollution alerts when air in a region becomes hazardous to citizens.

The Steubenville region was by far the worse with 14 separate alerts in 1973.

From May through November, the agency said Steubenville exceeded the 24-hour clean air standard 61 per cent of the time. Cleveland followed with 60 and Youngstown had 47 per cent.

Lake County and Lorain had the lowest with 8 per cent a piece.

The index measures particulate matter, sulfur dioxide, nitrogen dioxide, carbon monoxide and photochemical oxidants, which are produced by auto exhausts.

Mrs. Wills said the index has not been in existence long enough to determine if the quality in Ohio has improved or worsened.

The Mens Club is well known for the many worthwhile community causes they support and they in turn deserve all the support the community can give to them.

It is a two-fold enjoyment in as much as you will not only be contributing to an organization that does many good things but you will hear an evening of truly great music provided by the Crusaders, Bob Wills and the Inspirational (from Texas) and coming from Nashville, Tenn., the Hallelujah Minstrels — all three groups much respected for excellence in their field.

Recently returned from a Texas trip are Cotton and Helen Timmons and the Paul Morgans (Circleville residents). They guested with Helen's daughter and Paul's sister and her spouse, Mildred "Sis" Morgan Peters and Bob at McAllen, Texas.

This is right on the Texas-Mexico border so it was a natural for our folks to do a bit of shopping and sightseeing down Mexico way, too. They also spent some time with relatives in Louisiana.

The Timmons were Saturday evening dinner guests in our home and enjoyed meeting our Celia and houseguest Yara Helena Silva. Yara is with a family at New Bremen. She, too, is from Brazil—the capital city of Sao Paulo in Sao Paulo state.

On Thursday, Celia, Amy and myself had driven to Piqua and overnighted with my sister Norma, her sidekick John and their doll Jo Lynne. Friday we met Yara and her Ohio papa at the Piqua Mall and Yara then accompanied us to our home where she delighted us until Poppy Bill and I took Celia and Yara to Columbus airport early Sunday a.m. where they boarded a jet for Phoenix, Arizona and a six-day tour of Grand Canyon, Palm Springs, Disneyland and other exciting sights westward ho.

They will return Friday evening and it will be our joy to hear them relate their experiences and impressions with their bubbling enthusiasm.

Marvie baby and his Dolly Thompson and their Shirley and Brad journeyed to Mt. Gilead Saturday for a get together with good friends Roger and Sue Beck, Stacey and Michael. Accompanying the Thompsons were their weekend guests Wayne and Pat Fry and youngsters Renee and Julie of Streeter, Ill.

The Frys are former residents of our area and being a bit nostalgic for old friends and scenes they drove this way. When they left Sunday they were very much aware that even though it was snowing quite hard here there was already twelve inches of the white stuff at their home base.

Our nephew, David McClure of Londonderry, divided his weekend time between our home and that of John Graffis.

Glancing out my window on occasion during the weekend I noticed that my neighbor Mrs. Bertha Porter and her companion Lillian Hess had visitors one evening of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Trump (Mrs. B's daughter) of Circleville and another time son Herman Porter of the Five Points area. The Herman Porters are just recently returned from a Florida vacation.

Our Amy returned to school Monday after being "under the weather" for several days. Chicken pox victims R. V. Hamman and Mike Debo are trying to make the best of a trying situation.

Baptism

Baptismal services are always quite special but for our minister, the Rev. Richard Crosby and his Marybelle, they became extra special and meaningful this past Sunday when the Rev. Crosby officiated at the baptism of his granddaughter Chellene Rae Hitchcock, three months old and his grandniece Elizabeth Ann Neely, eight months old.

Chellene and her parents Richard and Collene of Grover Hill were Friday until Monday members of the Crosby household. Elizabeth Ann and her family, Dr. J. L. and Mrs. Neely, Danny and Andrew of Fairborn, grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Al Haas of Dayton and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Neely (Marybelle's very much look alike sister) of Antwerp arrived Sunday morning.

They were all guests of the Crosbys for Sunday dinner before returning to their respective homes in the late afternoon. Chellene and Elizabeth were attired in lovely long white christening dresses for the baptism that took place during regular worship hour at the Williamsport United Methodist Church.

Four years old going on five Sandra Phillips of Oakwood kept things perky at the parsonage from Tuesday until Monday when she returned to her home as the Hitchcocks went to their home. Sandra had come here with grandparents the Rev. Richard and Marybelle after they had visited with the Phillips family Monday and Tuesday.

Well, folks, it is still a neck and neck challenge for first place between L-K and Lawsons of the Morning Glories League at the Circle D bowling alley on Tuesday morning. Had Air Circle been more cooperative this past Tuesday and let L-K win at least one more game then the pressure wouldn't be so great (insert a laugh here). All I can say to Betty Fausnaugh, Aletta Conkright, Paula Compher and Ann Hoffman is Tsk! Tsk!

On the subject of bowling, our Celia bowled for her very first time (compliments of good guy—Larry Dietrich) last Wednesday and what a "bowl" (corn, corn) she had. She is hoping to try at least once more before that not-at-all-looked-forward-to day of departure for her homeland.

The many friends of "Babe" List grieve deeply his departure from our midst. No more the ready smile, the gently joshing wit, the twinkling merriment ever present in his eyes. His deep interest in everything, especially school activities and his love of travel have been stilled for

Economic Indicators Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's business indicators index rebounded sharply in January after the steepest decline in 23 years in December, the Commerce Department reported today.

The business indicators are supposed to forecast future performance in the economy.

The index rose 2 per cent in January on the basis of preliminary figures, following a 2.7 per cent decline in December. The January increase was the largest monthly gain since August 1972, when the index rose 2.5 per cent.

The rise in the index in January could give support to the President's pledge to avoid a recession in the United States this year.

However, the indicators have been characterized by erratic behavior in recent months.

The January figures are subject to revision when later and final information is received.

Air Quality Index Proves Useful

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A 45-year-old factory worker, long hospitalized in Steubenville for a respiratory ailment but now recovered, eagerly awaited his scheduled release.

Suddenly, his doctor said the worker wasn't going home that day.

The physician had learned that the air quality over Steubenville, long a center of industrial pollution problems, had worsened in the last 24 hours. Hot, muggy weather had firmly gripped industrial and automobile pollution so that it didn't blow away.

Conditions outside the hospital faced the factory worker with a relapse.

His physician decided to release his patient after the air had cleared up.

Doctors, hospitals and just plain citizens know the quality of their air these days because of a program begun by the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency last May. The program is called the air quality index.

Noreen Wills, Ohio EPA spokeswoman, said the air quality index has been well received in the state.

"A lot of hospitals were glad to see it," she said. "They can use it to determine if a respiratory patient is ready to go home. The hospital also can tell when to expect the emergency room to be flooded with people suffering from breathing problems."

She said those at home can use the index to decide if they can safely go outside without coughing and wheezing.

"You can't go out and just sniff to see if the air is dirty," she said. "The index is a simple and above board procedure which tells people what they are breathing."

Ruth Kochman's Party
Meat Balls

The specialty of a hostess in Port Washington, L.I., N.Y.

2 pounds ground beef round
1 egg
1 medium onion, finely grated (pulp and juice)

1 teaspoon salt
1 cup chili sauce
1/2 cup grape jelly
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Thoroughly mix together beef, unbeaten egg, onion and salt. Roll into 1-inch balls — about 80. In a large skillet stir together the chili sauce, grape jelly and lemon juice; heat, stirring, until jelly dissolves. Add a single layer of meat balls and cook, stirring gently, until meat balls firm up — about 10 minutes. With a slotted spoon remove meat balls and add remaining meat balls, cooking as before. Return all meat balls to skillet and cook gently spooning off fat as it rises to the top, for 10 to 20 minutes. If desired, cook ahead, but do not bother spooning off fat; chill meat balls and sauce separately. Before reheating meat balls in sauce, remove congealed fat from sauce.

Beat eggs just until foamy; stir in sugar, corn syrup, milk, butter, vanilla and salt. Gradually stir in rum, then pecans. Pour into pastry shell. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven on rack below center for 35 minutes or until firm around the edges but still slightly shaky in the center. Place on wire rack to cool. Makes 8 servings.

Glenn, Metzenbaum Taxes Probed

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—The Dayton Journal-Herald reported today that Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, paid no state income tax for 1972.

The same year, the newspaper said in a copyrighted story, Metzenbaum's primary election opponent, former astronaut John Glenn, settled a two-year personal property tax delinquency.

Scheduling Begins At Junior High

Scheduling for the 1974-75 school year begins Feb. 28 at Circleville Junior High School. It will run for four days, with orientation for eighth and ninth graders being conducted during the regular school days.

In addition, there will be a meeting for all interested parents and guardians in the junior high auditorium March 5 at 7:30 p.m. Walter Owens, Circleville Junior High Principal, Ray Pack, Pickaway-Ross Vocational School Counselor, Mrs. Doris Gillespie and Dick Fisher, Circleville High School Counselors, and Mrs. Sharon Wilamowski, Circleville Junior High Counselor, will be present at the meeting.

The program will center around requirements for graduation, requirements for attending the vocational school, course availability, and course selection. A question and answer period will follow.

All interested parents and guardians are invited. Also, any parent or guardian who wishes to schedule a personal appointment may call the junior high at 474-2345.

Final registration will be completed by March 15.

However, if figures from both camps are accurate, Metzenbaum paid more into the Ohio Treasury that year than Glenn.

These facts were uncovered by the Journal-Herald after the two contenders for the Democratic Senate nomination issued financial disclosure statements.

Metzenbaum's office in Washington confirmed that the Ohio senator has not yet paid any Ohio income tax.

Glenn's headquarters in Columbus disclosed he did not pay personal property taxes for the first two years after he returned to Ohio.

Metzenbaum spokesmen said the senator escaped the new Ohio tax in 1972, it's first year, because the great bulk of his income was from dividends and interest.

That income is taxable as intangible personal property, at a higher rate than the graduated personal income tax.

Glenn's aide said the former astronaut did not pay that same tax on more than $60,000 of dividends and interest because neither he nor his Texas accountants were aware of the Ohio law.

It cost him $437 in penalties and interest after an Ohio accounting firm caught the omission, the spokesman said.

Metzenbaum's press secretary, Monroe Karmin said the senator paid $15,136 to the state in 1972. —All of it in taxes on dividends and interest.

Glenn's news secretary, Dick Bragaw, said his boss paid $13,895 to the state that year—$8,762 in income tax, $1,458 in personal property tax and $3,674 to settle his two-year-old debt.

The law that tripped Glenn and allowed Metzenbaum to slide past the income tax goes back to the early 1930s.

It imposes a flat, 5 per cent tax on intangible personal property, including income from almost all types of stocks, bonds and bank deposits and other interest-producing notes.

When the Ohio Legislature passed the graduated income tax in 1971, it did not repeal the 40-year-old tax on dividends and interest.

State Tax Commissioner Robert Kosydar explained that because income can't be taxed twice, dividends and interest are exempt from the income tax.

Metzenbaum aides would not disclose the senator's total dividends and interest income for 1972.

With that income excluded, Karmin said, the senator had a taxable income of 1972 that was less than his total deductions, leaving him an Ohio income tax liability of zero.

Scheduling for the 1974-75 school year begins Feb. 28 at Circleville Junior High School. It will run for four days, with orientation for eighth and ninth graders being conducted during the regular school days.

In addition, there will be a meeting for all interested parents and guardians in the junior high auditorium March 5 at 7:30 p.m. Walter Owens, Circleville Junior High Principal, Ray Pack, Pickaway-Ross Vocational School Counselor, Mrs. Doris Gillespie and Dick Fisher, Circleville High School Counselors, and Mrs. Sharon Wilamowski, Circleville Junior High Counselor, will be present at the meeting.

The program will center around requirements for graduation, requirements for attending the vocational school, course availability, and course selection. A question and answer period will follow.

All interested parents and guardians are invited. Also, any parent or guardian who wishes to schedule a personal appointment may call the junior high at 474-2345.

Final registration will be completed by March 15.

However, if figures from both camps are accurate, Metzenbaum paid more into the Ohio Treasury that year than Glenn.

These facts were uncovered by the Journal-Herald after the two contenders for the Democratic Senate nomination issued financial disclosure statements.

Metzenbaum's office in Washington confirmed that the Ohio senator has not yet paid any Ohio income tax.

Glenn's headquarters in Columbus disclosed he did not pay personal property taxes for the first two years after he returned to Ohio.

Metzenbaum spokesmen said the senator escaped the new Ohio tax in 1972, it's first year, because the great bulk of his income was from dividends and interest.

That income is taxable as intangible personal property, at a higher rate than the graduated personal income tax.

Glenn's aide said the former astronaut did not pay that same tax on more than $60,000 of dividends and interest because neither he nor his Texas accountants were aware of the Ohio law.

It cost him $437 in penalties and interest after an Ohio accounting firm caught the omission, the spokesman said.

Metzenbaum's press secretary, Monroe Karmin said the senator paid $15,136 to the state in 1972. —All of it in taxes on dividends and interest.

Glenn's news secretary, Dick Bragaw, said his boss paid $13,895 to the state that year—$8,762 in income tax, $1,458 in personal property tax and $3,674 to settle his two-year-old debt.

The law that tripped Glenn and allowed Metzenbaum to slide past the income tax goes back to the early 1930s.

It imposes a flat, 5 per cent tax on intangible personal property, including income from almost all types of stocks, bonds and bank deposits and other interest-producing notes.

When the Ohio Legislature passed the graduated income tax in 1971, it did not repeal the 40-year-old tax on dividends and interest.

State Tax Commissioner Robert Kosydar explained that because income can't be taxed twice, dividends and interest are exempt from the income tax.

Metzenbaum aides would not disclose the senator's total dividends and interest income for 1972.

With that income excluded, Karmin said, the senator had a taxable income of 1972 that was less than his total deductions, leaving him an Ohio income tax liability of zero.

WHY THE MAIL IS LATE—Postal workers begin the task of sorting and drying 10,000 water soaked parcels of mail destined from New York to Salt Lake City, Utah. The mail is being dried by blowers in a warehouse in Forest Park, Ill., a west Chicago suburb, in temperatures maintained at 85 degrees. ## Percy To Speak In Gradison Drive

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — U.S. Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., who has hinted he is considering running for president in 1976, arrives in Cincinnati today to boost the campaign of congressional candidate Willis D. Gradison.

Percy joins a small force of Republican leaders who have journeyed to Cincinnati to press the attack in what Watergate watchers consider a key race.

Gradison is seeking to continue Republican dominance in Ohio's 1st Congressional District, where only three Democrats have wrested a seat since the turn of the century.

The March 5 special election is for the unexpired term of former I.S. Rep. William Keating, R-Ohio, who retired. Gradison's foe, Thomas A. Luken, is considered one of the strongest Democratic candidates produced in the past decade. Last November he established an all-time election record by claiming 72 per cent of votes for City Council.

Gradison and Luken are scheduled to hold their third of four debates today at the University of Cincinnati, with Percy on the sidelines.

Percy will hold a news conference at 4 p.m., Gradison headquarters said. Gradison and Luken have brought in major political leaders to bolster their drives.

Former U.S. Attorney General Elliot Richardson arrives Saturday to appear on Gradison's behalf.

Luken, who spent part of Wednesday visiting with auto plant workers in suburban Sharonville, has former Democratic vice presidential candidate Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, scheduled for a Sunday appearance.

The only two Democratic victories in the district in the 40 years were ushered in by the landslide presidential triumphs of Democrats Franklin D. Roosevelt and Lyndon Johnson.

Two other special elections—in Michigan and Pennsylvania—have gone to Democrats, but Republican leaders claim the setbacks were not attributable to a Watergate backlash.

Luken has kept the Watergate issue low-key throughout his campaign. Gradison has said "only the names of Willis Gradison and Thomas Luken are on the ballot."

Luken, in his campaign advertisements, claims Gradison would be "another rubber stamp" in the Republican camp.

Gradison has blasted Luken's labor backing.

NOVA IS FOR NOW.

No matter how you look at it, the Chevrolet Nova is a car for our times.

Size-wise, it's neither too big nor too little. A compact with Turbo-Thrift six-cylinder engine (Turbo-Fire 350 V8 also available) that not only has good styling but such welcome features as flow-through power ventilation, side-guard door beams and full-foam seat construction.

What's more, Nova is what you'd call time-tested. Constant improvements have been made, rather than change for the sake of change. And that's what helps make it such a good value.

As for price, that too is very sensible—actually just one more reason for looking into Nova. Why not do it at our showroom soon?

Big Labor To Donate To Gilligan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio labor unions are expected to contribute about $300,000 to Gov. John J. Gilligan's re-election campaign this year, a source said Wednesday.

The source, close to Gilligan, said campaign officials have plotted how much money they anticipate the unions will contribute over a period of months leading up to the November general election.

Half of the money will come from the United Auto Workers, the source said. He said other unions expected to contribute and their amounts were: International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, $75,000; Retail Clerks Union, $20,000; AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education $15,000; United Steelworkers Union, $25,000; American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, $15,000.

Carpenters, $5,000; machinists, $20,000; laborers, $5,000, and other unions $35,000.

The source said the labor contributions will represent about one-fifth of the $1.5 million Gilligan plans to spend on the primary and general election campaigns.

Bill Brannon, assistant campaign director, "We haven't made any contact to establish what they (the unions) will contribute. Boy, I just can't tell you that."

Brannon said, "We have no information on what they are willing to give. They contributed in the past and will continue to contribute, unless precluded by law."

However, the source indicated campaign officials have established figures on anticipated union donations.

Meanwhile, Eugene P. O'Grady, campaign chairman, has announced guidelines to be followed in handling political contributions.

They are:
—Cash contributions of more than $100 will not be accepted from any individual or committee.

—Individual contributions will be limited to not more than $3,000 each for the primary and general elections.

—All campaign contributions and expenditures will be disclosed before and after the May primary and the November general election.

—The reports will be filed with the secretary of state and Common Cause, a public interest lobby group.

—A single political and finance committee will handle all contributions.

—No anonymous donations will be

Dual Slaying Suspect Faces Possible Trial As Adult

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Summit County Prosecutor Stephen M. Gabalac says Carl Bayless, who is 18 today, will have a hearing in Juvenile Court to determine whether he will stand trial as an adult in the slayings of an Akron funeral director and his wife.

The prosecutor's office filed charges of aggravated murder Wednesday against Bayless in the shooting deaths of Paul P. Anthony, 47, and his wife, Patricia, 39, of Wadsworth.

If Bayless is tried as an adult, conviction on the charges could bring the death penalty under Ohio's revised code.

Three and a half years ago, Bayless pleaded guilty as a juvenile to the robbery-slaying of Francis K. Means of Akron, a retired engineer. Police said he served time in Ohio Youth Commission facilities before being placed in a foster home.

He walked away from the foster home last Nov. 2, police reported.

Anthony, who was chairman of the Kucko-Anthony-Hecker funeral home, and his wife were found dead early Wednesday in Perkins Woods Park in Akron. Police, acting on a telephoned tip, found the bodies face down in the snow. Anthony held a rosary, and a crucifix was found near his wife's body, police said.

Both had been shot in the back of the head, police reported.

Detectives said the couple were believed to have been abducted from a shopping center and driven to the park.

Police said the couple's car later was believed to have been used in an armed robbery at a carryout drive-in.

The car was found Wednesday morning in a driveway near the home of Bayless' mother, Mrs. Bernice Bayless, police reported.

Detective Joseph Thomas said he found Bayless in an attic of the home armed with a pistol. Bayless surrendered the weapon and gave up, Thomas said.

Mrs. Anthony was a teacher at Sacred Heart School in Wadsworth. The couple had six children.

Fire Chief Comments On Fire Code Violation At Hospital

Fire Chief Bernard Wolfe attended the monthly meeting Wednesday evening of the Berger Hospital Board of Governors. Wolfe attended the meeting to comment on the conditions which were in violation of the fire and safety codes. He had visited the hospital facility recently and found four patients' beds in the hallways.

In discussion of the problem, the board members said they realized the problem did exist but the hospital could not turn away emergency cases and it was those type cases that were put in the hallways when there was no other room available.

Possible solutions to the problems were proposed and it was announced that the medical staff is presently working on a revised admission policy. Comments were also made that the case is determined as an emergency by the physician and a revision of emergency standards would be important.

The State Fire Marshall has checked the hospital twice in the past year and also found circumstances which violate fire and safety codes. The board has always been aware of the situation and has made provisions for solution in the plans of the new building project which will be built to exact specifications of the codes.

Most of the complaints which have arisen have probably been made by visitors instead of patients. The board members present discussed the justification of breaking the rules in life and death situations but realized that many times cases termed as emergency are elective cases.

Hospital Administrator John Reid announced to the board that a new member had been added to the administrative staff and the board extended an invitation through Reid for the new man to attend the next meeting. Larry Willard, hired in the administration department, holds a bachelor of science in business administration.

The proposal made at the last board meeting to cover the emergency room with more staff was discussed by Reid and the board members. Reid said the proposal would cost as much as $75,000 per year but he was working on trying to get Medicare and other third party payers to help with the expense.

A proposal for an increase in nurses' salaries was discussed. Salaries of other hospitals in the areas of Chillicothe and Columbus were reviewed and discussed.

Reid advised the board that the radiologist which they had been hoping to employ had written a letter stating he had accepted a position in Cleveland.

In conclusion of the administrator's report, it was announced that the licensing from the State Department of Health was coming through and is expected at any time.

Bidding is continuing for materials and contracts on the Phase I building project. Hospital architect Dan Carmichael had advised the board that bidding would be final on March 5. He will report to them on the bids received at the next meeting.

A Joint Conference Committee has been organized as a means of communication network representing both the board of governors and the medical staff. Henry Schroeder, Charles Rose and Frank Barnhill were appointed by the board to represent it in the committee and Dr. Emily Lutz, Dr. William Myers and Dr. Jasper Hedges were appointed from the medical staff.

Dr. Myers, representative from the medical staff, announced that the staff was recommending four physicians for courtesy staff privileges in the emergency room. The board agreed to allow these staff privileges as recommended.

A donation was made to the Mid-Ohio Health Planning Federation. The board voted to give the same amount as last year's donation, $1,000. The annual donation was also given to the general guilds. The board of governors and hospital employees made matching contributions to the guild.

Two pieces of equipment not specified in the budget were approved for purchase. Two surgical positioning sets as requested by Dr. Carlos Alvarez at $379.50 were approved. The positioning set enables the surgeon to place the patient in different positions on the operating table.

The second piece of equipment, a spirometer, is already in use in the hospital on trial. The machine costing $1,195 will enable physicians to take readings on the patient's breathing capacity in cases of obstructive lung diseases. Dr. Myers explained the mechanism of the machine to the board and said it was mainly a device for testing rather than treatment but is nevertheless necessary in treatment procedure.

The DuPont plant has made the spirometer test required in the annual physical examination of its employees and the machine will now be available for use.

Mrs. Nelson Stevens was present at the meeting representing the general guilds. She announced that the director of the general guilds will be coming to Circleville March 12. She also advised there were now approximately 30 guilds in operation in the area and was interested in helping those in outlying communities to start hospital guilds if they wished.

A report from the finance committee showed that the occupancy for January was 82 per cent over last year's figure of 87 per cent. The occupancy for obstetrics was 62 per cent which Reid said was the best figure they had showed in a long time. Emergency room visits for the month totaled 869 which was said to be encouraging since there is usually a per centage of increase in emergency cases.

More ERA Ratifications Are Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment are optimistic of approval at least by 1975. But they expect additional setbacks before ratification by the needed 38 states.

"The three states that are key now are Illinois, Florida and Louisiana," said Pat Keefe, coordinator of the Common Cause lobby for the ERA.

"If we won the battles in these three states, that would bring us up to 36 and then it might be possible for other borderline states, such as Oklahoma, to ratify this year also," she said.

But some temporary setbacks are expected in other states and supporters have set a goal of January 1975 for ratification, she said.

Five more states must ratify the constitutional amendment banning sex discrimination before it becomes law. With an assist from organized labor and the White House, ERA proponents have won ratification this year in Maine, Ohio and Montana.

Georgia's House defeated the proposed constitutional amendment in January.

Gangland Figure Surrenders To Police

NEW YORK (AP) — Joseph "Joe Yak" Yacovelli has surrendered to police who have sought him for questioning since 1972 in the gangland slaying of Joseph "Crazy Joe" Gallo.

Yacovelli, a reputed squad leader in the crime family of Joseph Columbo, turned himself over to police on Wednesday in the studios of radio station WINS.

TOGETHER AGAIN—Joanne Tomchik and her two daughters, Amy, 3, (left) and Lisa, 5, are reunited in Burnt Hills, N.Y. after a two-year separation. The children were taken by Mrs. Tomchik's former husband and had not been seen since. A psychic handled some of the children's toys, saw a truck with North Carolina license plates as she handled the toys, and then checked with North Carolina authorities to trace the plates and find the children.

But some temporary setbacks are expected in other states and supporters have set a goal of January 1975 for ratification, she said.

Five more states must ratify the constitutional amendment banning sex discrimination before it becomes law.

With an assist from organized labor and the White House, ERA proponents have won ratification this year in Maine, Ohio and Montana.

Georgia's House defeated the proposed constitutional amendment in January.

Ohio Fisherman Breaking Records

By JIM DAUBEL
Written for
The Associated Press

Records are made to be broken and Ohio fishermen have been doing just that with surprising consistency in recent years.

Twenty-four record-setting fish have been caught in Ohio since 1965, the last year in which no state record was recognized in any of the categories listed.

Three records were established in 1973 following a banner year in 1972 when eight fish topped the largest specimens ever documented in their categories.

The state's record fish list is compiled by the Outdoor Writers Of Ohio, Inc., (OWO), an organization of professional writers and photographers who cover the outdoor scene.

Over the years it has become more and more difficult to achieve records in Ohio.

OWO recognizes only the largest fish ever recorded in Ohio in each of 33 species divisions. Record fish in some divisions are pushing the upper weight limits that biologists expect Ohio species to attain in those categories.

The outdoor writers also have tightened up rules by which new records are recognized in hook-and-line and bowfishing divisions.

Formerly, weight was the sole basis for judging. Now fish are scored according to a formula that awards points for both weight and length.

Applications must be filed on an official form within six months of the catch. A close-up photo of the fish must accompany the entry and potential record fish must be kept frozen for inspection if necessary. Two witnesses must verify the weigh-in and sign the application form.

Ed Bair of Findlay is current chairman of OWO's record fish committee which consists of three members who vote on each application.

Recognized as new records in 1973 were a 15-pound striped bass caught by Roy Schaefer, Dayton, in Grand Lake St. Marys; a six-pound bowfin taken by Joe Geiber, Zanesville, at Dillon Dam, and a four-pound, 14-ounce sucker shot by bowfisherman Art Bishop, Wooster, in the Kokosing River.

Braves Sting Celtics

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

All bad things must come to an end. The Buffalo Braves have been bouncing basketballs in the National Basketball Association for four seasons and for four seasons they've been bounced around by the Boston Celtics.

After losing every one of the 22 regular season games previously played between the clubs, the Braves finally bounced back Wednesday night and stung the Celtics 122-104.

"I didn't know if we'd ever beat the Celtics," said Bob McAdoo, who had every right to wonder. Last Friday night, McAdoo scored the NBA's season-high of 52 points, but the Celtics still chalked up No. 22 in a row, 116-109.

"I was beginning to feel we were snakebit playing this team," added McAdoo, who tossed in 37 points.

Elsewhere in the NBA, the Kansas City-Omaha Kings trimmed the Atlanta Hawks 85-76; the Capital Bullets downed the Seattle Super-sonics 104-100; the Los Angeles Lakers beat the Milwaukee Bucks 110-108, and the Chicago Bulls defeated the Phoenix Suns 107-95.

With the victory, Buffalo moved seven games ahead of the Atlanta Hawks in the battle for the fourth playoff spot in the Eastern Conference.

Ernie DiGregorio helped the Buffalo cause with 20 points and 15 rebounds while McAdoo contributed 15 rebounds.

Dave Cowens had 23 points and 23 rebounds for the Celtics.

Hearst Food Distributed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — People in Need organizers are hopeful of avoiding more violence when they resume a food giveaway designed to lead to negotiations for the release of kidnaped heiress Patricia Hearst.

Between 20,000 and 24,000 persons were expected to line up at 11 distribution sites in the San Francisco Bay area for free groceries today, said A. Ludlow Kramer, Washington's secretary of state, who organized the giveaway.

Kramer said he was confident the operation would run more smoothly than the initial food distribution last Friday, which was marred by confusion and violence at one distribution point in East Oakland.

Kramer said People in Need now can distribute "the type of food (that) meets the demands" of the Symbionese Liberation Army, which claims to be holding Miss Hearst hostage.

Teachers Back On Job

HARRISON, Ohio (AP) — Schools here started an hour late today but all teachers were back on the job after ratifying their first-ever contract, ending a four-day-old strike.

Bob Wooldridge, clerk-treasurer of the Southwest Local School District, said members of the Southwest local Classroom Teachers Association ratified the contract this morning after the board of education approved it Wednesday night.

He said the board dropped its insistence on a no-strike clause. In return, he said, the teachers dropped their demands for a binding arbitration clause.

A fair dismissal policy clause sought by the teachers is in the contract, he said.

The strike began last Friday after 14 months of negotiation.

There are seven schools in the district.

An unexpected hazard of the energy crisis struck a resident of Hampstead, a posh north London district, as he left a restaurant. He was knocked down by a hit-and-run roller skater.

NFL Gives Rozelle New Contract

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — If only agreeing on a contract with the players were as easy as writing a new one for the commissioner.

National Football League owners, who'll be facing one of their toughest financial battles in years when they start negotiating with the Players' Association next month, sprung a bit of a surprise Wednesday as their annual winter meetings began grinding to a close.

The major subjects of Super Bowls, expansion and rule changes out of the way, the talk was turning toward more trivial matters when Lamar Hunt, owner of the Kansas City Chiefs and president of the American Conference, interrupted the news briefing and announced that the owners had torn up Commissioner Pete Rozelle's contract and given him a new one.

It's a 10-year pact "at a substantial increase in salary," which extends through 1982. Rozelle had been working under a 10-year contract which was to expire in 1978. The new pact is sort of a pre-birthday present. Rozelle will be 48 on Friday.

He has been commissioner of the NFL since Jan. 26, 1960, when he succeeded the late Bert Bell. It was a 13-team league then, growing to 16 by 1969, then ballooning to the current 26 the next year with the merger with the old American Football League. Rozelle figures the NFL eventually will grow to 32 teams.

It's likely to become 28 for the 1975 season. The prime subject here — beyond keeping Super Bowl IX in New Orleans — was expansion. Although the owners put off, at least until late April, the awarding of franchises, they did cut the field of candidate cities from 24 to five — Seattle, Honolulu, Memphis, Phoenix and Tampa, Fla.

By Wednesday, though, the talk was down to the light housekeeping — tossing around ideas on rule changes, committee reports, television ratings and the like. The meetings are expected to end this afternoon.

Rozelle, after sitting in on Competition Committee presentations to the coaches in the morning and to owners in the afternoon, said it figures the owners will be more susceptible to changes in the playing rules — probably affecting the general offense and defense more than the oft-assailed kicking game — but that nothing drastic should be expected to come out of the spring meetings in May and June in New York.

"Let's face it," Rozelle said, "the coaches have done too good a job with their defenses. I'd like to see some kinds of changes that will really open up the offense."

Buddy Bell Ready To Spark Tribe

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Buddy Bell's major league career has reached dizzying heights in the short span of two full seasons.

As a 20-year-old rookie, he won and kept a regular job in the outfield with the Indians in 1972. Last year, when the Tribe dealt Max Alvis to the New York Yankees, Bell became the regular third baseman.

It was a major move for Manager Ken Aspromonte who had Bell as his third baseman in Wichita.

Bell, by now a veteran 21-year-old, not only lived up to Aspromonte's confidence, he was the Indians' lone representative on the American League All-Star team and was named Man of the Year by Cleveland baseball writers.

So what goals does the 22-year-old idol of Northern Ohio fans look for in 1974?

"This year," says the Tribe's handsome blond infielder, "I just hope we can win more together. I mean the whole team. Before anything, I want us to win."

This is part of Aspromonte's reason for designating Bell, and relief pitcher Ken Sanders, leaders of the daily exercises that start the spring training routine here.

"I want him to be a leader on the ball club," says Aspromonte, "but I want it without giving him the title of leader or captain. He's going to be the man people start looking up to in years to come."

Bell batted .256 and hit nine home runs his rookie year and lifted those figures to .268 and 14 last season. He feels both can be improved upon, and these have become personal goals.

In addition, he led the Indians in seven other offensive categories: games played (156), at-bats (631), runs scored (86), hits (169) triples (7), hit by pitch (6) and total bases (248).

"I'd like to be more consistent at the plate," Bell still sounds slightly sheepish and almost apologetic. "I think I could have finished around .280 last year if I hadn't had slumps at the beginning and again at the end of the season."

I feel stronger right now and feel I can improve with the bat," he adds. Bell is now a strapping 6-2 185-pounder.

Gervin, Spurs Defeat Nets

By ANDY LIPPMAN
AP Sports Writer

George Gervin says he never wants any other American Basketball Association player to be treated the way he was when he was dealt from Virginia to San Antonio.

"I felt like a piece of meat that had been bought and left in the freezer until the purchaser came to pick it up," said Gervin Wednesday, reviewing his feelings on learning he had been traded from the Virginia Squires to the San Antonio Spurs nearly a month after the deal had reportedly been made.

Gervin said the ABA Players' Association is working to make sure there is never a repetition of the situation.

While the trade is unsettled and is still being contested in court, Gervin says he's happy to be with San Antonio. And the Spurs must have been happy to have him around when he sank two free throws with 52 seconds remaining to help the Spurs gain a 107-103 victory over the New York Nets.

In other ABA games, Kentucky trounced Virginia 104-83, San Diego edged Carolina 119-117, and Denver beat Indiana 118-114.

Marquette Tops Toledo

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Marquette basketball Coach Al McGuire heaved a sign of relief after his eighth-ranked team salvaged a 61-58 triumph over Toledo Wednesday night and said, "our offense was like Dunkirk."

"Our defense was representative, but our offense didn't have any smoothness," he said. "That had a lot to do with the way Toledo defended us."

We beat them with muscle."
Marquette stayed ahead most of the way, but never was able to build more than a sevenpoint lead.
The Rockets closed to within one point, 57-56, late in the game, then lost the ball on a bad pass and Marquette sewed up the victory with a basket by Rick Campbell.

Center Maurice Lucas paced Marquette with 27 points. Mike Parker was tops for Toledo with 18.

Toledo outrebounded the visitors 35-27, and McGuire said afterward, "I don't know how Toledo controlled the boards. They took Bo Ellis right out of there." Ellis, a 6-foot-8 forward, had eight rebounds.

Toledo Coach Bob Nichols noted Lucas was "good from the outside. But a 6-8 player shooting from out there ...if the ball doesn't go in the rebounding has to be affected."

Nichols said his team's good showing against Marquette might have improved its chances of getting a tournament bid.

The Rockets still are a longshot contender for the MidAmerican Conference title and an automatic NCAA tournament berth. If they beat Kent State Saturday and Bowling Green downs Ohio University, the three teams would go into a playoff for the championship.

In Mac action Wednesday night, Miami defeated Kent State to escape a losing season in the league with a 6-6 mark. Gary Dees paced the Redskins with 20 points but Kent's Dennis Odle took game scoring honors with 28.

"I think our kids wanted to win for our seniors and it motivated us," Miami Coach Darrel Hedrick observed later.

Elsewhere Wednesday night, Ohio Dominican snapped a 14-game losing streak by beating Findlay 61-57, Akron whipped Cleveland State 92-78, Ashland defeated Youngstown State 98-84 and Defiance rolled over TriState 96-77.

Rose Signs $150,000 Pact

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Baseball's big money goes to home run hitters, right? Wrong, proved Pete Rose Wednesday.

The Cincinnati Reds' fiery leader moved into an elite class when he signed a 1974 contract for an estimated $150,000—highest in the club's history.

That averages about $2,000 a game and Reds' President Bob Howsam apparently thinks the 32-year-old veteran is worth it.

"I think he's looking to me to be the leader," said Rose as he prepared for his 12th major league season.

Rose will be bidding for a 10th consecutive .300 season. He won the league batting crown with a .338 average, his third title.

He edged Pittsburgh slugger Willie Stargell for the coveted National League Most Valuable Player Award. Stargell led the majors in home runs with 44. Rose had five. "I think it proves you don't have to hit homers to be MVP," he said.

Rose said his meeting with Howsam lasted only 15 minutes.

Arbitration was never considered, Rose said. "I don't believe that helps the team. In fact, I always hated it when I held out. I felt that hurt the team."

"My goal now is to win...win it all," said the Reds' captain.

"I want 8,000 hits and a World Series ring," said the Reds' ringleader, who holds a mitt full of club records. They include most games (1,697), times at bat (6,907), runs (1,107), hits (2,152) and double (349).

Nicknamed "Charlie Hustle" for his all-out play and style, the Cincinnati native sparked the Reds to a third Western Division title in four years in 1973.

But frustration and a celebrated fistfight marred his greatest season. The Reds lost the league playoff to the New York Mets. In the process, Rose became Gotham's biggest villain since King Kong when he and Mets' short-stop Bud Harrelson traded punches.

Rose, noted for wit as quick as his bat, quipped Wednesday: "I needed a big contract because I haven't paid my fine yet."

He has until March 9 to pay the league office $250 for his part in the scuffle.

Showered by a barrage of litter, Rose answered the Mets' fans with a 12th inning homer off Cy Young Award winner Tom Seaver to win the fourth game and tie the series at 2-2. The Reds lost the next day and with it went Rose's goal to play on a World Champion club.

He is the fourth member of the Reds to sign a contract for $100,000 or more for 1974. The others are catcher Johnny Bench, second baseman Joe Morgan and first baseman Tony Perez.

Y Volleyball Team Defeats Columbus

The Pickaway County YMCA volleyball team downed the South Side YMCA, 5-2, at Beery Junior High School, Columbus.

NFL Gives Rozelle New Contract

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — If only agreeing on a contract with the players were as easy as writing a new one for the commissioner.

National Football League owners, who'll be facing one of their toughest financial battles in years when they start negotiating with the Players' Association next month, sprung a bit of a surprise Wednesday as their annual winter meetings began grinding to a close.

The major subjects of Super Bowls, expansion and rule changes out of the way, the talk was turning toward more trivial matters when Lamar Hunt, owner of the Kansas City Chiefs and president of the American Conference, interrupted the news briefing and announced that the owners had torn up Commissioner Pete Rozelle's contract and given him a new one.

It's a 10-year pact "at a substantial increase in salary," which extends through 1982. Rozelle had been working under a 10-year contract which was to expire in 1978. The new pact is sort of a pre-birthday present. Rozelle will be 48 on Friday.

He has been commissioner of the NFL since Jan. 26, 1960, when he succeeded the late Bert Bell. It was a 13-team league then, growing to 16 by 1969, then ballooning to the current 26 the next year with the merger with the old American Football League. Rozelle figures the NFL eventually will grow to 32 teams.

It's likely to become 28 for the 1975 season. The prime subject here — beyond keeping Super Bowl IX in New Orleans — was expansion. Although the owners put off, at least until late April, the awarding of franchises, they did cut the field of candidate cities from 24 to five — Seattle, Honolulu, Memphis, Phoenix and Tampa, Fla.

By Wednesday, though, the talk was down to the light housekeeping — tossing around ideas on rule changes, committee reports, television ratings and the like. The meetings are expected to end this afternoon.

Rozelle, after sitting in on Competition Committee presentations to the coaches in the morning and to owners in the afternoon, said it figures the owners will be more susceptible to changes in the playing rules — probably affecting the general offense and defense more than the oft-assailed kicking game — but that nothing drastic should be expected to come out of the spring meetings in May and June in New York.

"Let's face it," Rozelle said, "the coaches have done too good a job with their defenses. I'd like to see some kinds of changes that will really open up the offense."

Buddy Bell Ready To Spark Tribe

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Buddy Bell's major league career has reached dizzying heights in the short span of two full seasons.

As a 20-year-old rookie, he won and kept a regular job in the outfield with the Indians in 1972. Last year, when the Tribe dealt Max Alvis to the New York Yankees, Bell became the regular third baseman.

It was a major move for Manager Ken Aspromonte who had Bell as his third baseman in Wichita.

Bell, by now a veteran 21-year-old, not only lived up to Aspromonte's confidence, he was the Indians' lone representative on the American League All-Star team and was named Man of the Year by Cleveland baseball writers.

So what goals does the 22-year-old idol of Northern Ohio fans look for in 1974?

"This year," says the Tribe's handsome blond infielder, "I just hope we can win more together. I mean the whole team. Before anything, I want us to win."

This is part of Aspromonte's reason for designating Bell, and relief pitcher Ken Sanders, leaders of the daily exercises that start the spring training routine here.

"I want him to be a leader on the ball club," says Aspromonte, "but I want it without giving him the title of leader or captain. He's going to be the man people start looking up to in years to come."

Bell batted .256 and hit nine home runs his rookie year and lifted those figures to .268 and 14 last season. He feels both can be improved upon, and these have become personal goals.

In addition, he led the Indians in seven other offensive categories: games played (156), at-bats (631), runs scored (86), hits (169) triples (7), hit by pitch (6) and total bases (248).

"I'd like to be more consistent at the plate," Bell still sounds slightly sheepish and almost apologetic. "I think I could have finished around .280 last year if I hadn't had slumps at the beginning and again at the end of the season."

I feel stronger right now and feel I can improve with the bat," he adds. Bell is now a strapping 6-2 185-pounder.

Gervin, Spurs Defeat Nets

By ANDY LIPPMAN
AP Sports Writer

George Gervin says he never wants any other American Basketball Association player to be treated the way he was when he was dealt from Virginia to San Antonio.

"I felt like a piece of meat that had been bought and left in the freezer until the purchaser came to pick it up," said Gervin Wednesday, reviewing his feelings on learning he had been traded from the Virginia Squires to the San Antonio Spurs nearly a month after the deal had reportedly been made.

Gervin said the ABA Players' Association is working to make sure there is never a repetition of the situation.

While the trade is unsettled and is still being contested in court, Gervin says he's happy to be with San Antonio. And the Spurs must have been happy to have him around when he sank two free throws with 52 seconds remaining to help the Spurs gain a 107-103 victory over the New York Nets.

In other ABA games, Kentucky trounced Virginia 104-83, San Diego edged Carolina 119-117, and Denver beat Indiana 118-114.

Marquette Tops Toledo

By THE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Marquette basketball Coach Al McGuire heaved a sign of relief after his eighth-ranked team salvaged a 61-58 triumph over Toledo Wednesday night and said, "our offense was like Dunkirk."

"Our defense was representative, but our offense didn't have any smoothness," he said. "That had a lot to do with the way Toledo defended us."

We beat them with muscle."

Marquette stayed ahead most of the way, but never was able to build more than a sevenpoint lead.

The Rockets closed to within one point, 57-56, late in the game, then lost the ball on a bad pass and Marquette sewed up the victory with a basket by Rick Campbell.

Center Maurice Lucas paced Marquette with 27 points. Mike Parker was tops for Toledo with 18.

Toledo outrebounded the visitors 35-27, and McGuire said afterward, "I don't know how Toledo controlled the boards. They took Bo Ellis right out of there." Ellis, a 6-foot-8 forward, had eight rebounds.

Toledo Coach Bob Nichols noted Lucas was "good from the outside. But a 6-8 player shooting from out there ...if the ball doesn't go in the rebounding has to be affected."

Nichols said his team's good showing against Marquette might have improved its chances of getting a tournament bid.

The Rockets still are a longshot contender for the MidAmerican Conference title and an automatic NCAA tournament berth. If they beat Kent State Saturday and Bowling Green down Ohio University, the three teams would go into a playoff for the championship.

In Mac action Wednesday night, Miami defeated Kent State to escape a losing season in the league with a 6-6 mark. Gary Dees paced the Redskins with 20 points but Kent's Dennis Odle took game scoring honors with 28.

"I think our kids wanted to win for our seniors and it motivated us," Miami Coach Darrel Hedrick observed later.

Elsewhere Wednesday night, Ohio Dominican snapped a 14-game losing streak by beating Findlay 61-57, Akron whipped Cleveland State 92-78, Ashland defeated Youngstown State 98-84 and Defiance rolled over TriState 96-77.

Rose Signs $150,000 Pact

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Baseball's big money goes to home run hitters, right? Wrong, proved Pete Rose Wednesday.

The Cincinnati Reds' fiery leader moved into an elite class when he signed a 1974 contract for an estimated $150,000—highest in the club's history.

That averages about $2,000 a game and Reds' President Bob Howsam apparently thinks the 32-year-old veteran is worth it.

"I think he's looking to me to be the leader," said Rose as he prepared for his 12th major league season.

Rose will be bidding for a 10th consecutive .300 season. He won the league batting crown with a .338 average, his third title.

He edged Pittsburgh slugger Willie Stargell for the coveted National League Most Valuable Player Award. Stargell led the majors in home runs with 44. Rose had five. "I think it proves you don't have to hit homers to be MVP," he said.

Rose said his meeting with Howsam lasted only 15 minutes.

Arbitration was never considered, Rose said. "I don't believe that helps the team. In fact, I always hated it when I held out. I felt that hurt the team."

"My goal now is to win...win it all," said the Reds' captain.

"I want 8,000 hits and a World Series ring," said the Reds' ringleader, who holds a mitt full of club records. They include most games (1,697), times at bat (6,907), runs (1,107), hits (2,152) and double (349).

Nicknamed "Charlie Hustle" for his all-out play and style, the Cincinnati native sparked the Reds to a third Western Division title in four years in 1973.

But frustration and a celebrated fistfight marred his greatest season. The Reds lost the league playoff to the New York Mets. In the process, Rose became Gotham's biggest villain since King Kong when he and Mets' shortstop Bud Harrelson traded punches.

Rose, noted for wit as quick as his bat, quipped Wednesday: "I needed a big contract because I haven't paid my fine yet."

He has until March 9 to pay the league office $250 for his part in the scuffle.

Showered by a barrage of litter, Rose answered the Mets' fans with a 12th inning homer off Cy Young Award winner Tom Seaver to win the fourth game and tie the series at 2-2. The Reds lost the next day and with it went Rose's goal to play on a World Champion club.

He is the fourth member of the Reds to sign a contract for $100,000 or more for 1974. The others are catcher Johnny Bench, second baseman Joe Morgan and first baseman Tony Perez.

Views On Television

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The premise of CBS' "Dirty Sally" does not sound like your average television Western. Or your average anything else.

Sally Ferguson is a toothless crone, who takes an occasional nip and travels the West in a junk wagon like a vinegary good fairy. Her hair looks like she stuck her finger in an electric socket. She's accompanied on her travels by a mule named Worthless and a reformed gunfighter named Pike.

Jeanette Nolan mugs her way to hammy perfection in the role. If only the stories were as good. "Dirty Sally," a spinoff from "Gunsmoke," shut down production a few weeks ago for a repair job on its scripts.

Miss Nolan is a master at this kind of role, having done many in her long stage, film and television career.

The fact is, it was a character she did on the Richard Boone anthology show about 10 years ago that was the inspiration for Sally.

She said, "Jack Miller saw the role I did, an alcoholic, frowsy old bag. He thought she could be worked into a great Western show."

Miller, a writer, tried for years to interest "Gunsmoke" in the idea but was unsuccessful until he pitched the idea to executive producer John Mantley. Mantley told him to write a one-hour script.

In production, Mantley looked at the first dailies and told Miller to expand it to two hours. The two-part show, "Pike," which ran in early 1971 drew the most mail in the history of "Gunsmoke" and won the Cowboy Hall of Fame Award. Miller is now executive story consultant for both "Gunsmoke" and "Dirty Sally."

St. Xavier

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati St. Xavier is a solid favorite to win its fifth consecutive Ohio high school swimming title in the 47th annual meet Friday and Saturday at Ohio State.

Based on district times last weekend, the Aquabombers are expected to win another crown easily with Upper Arlington in the best position to challenge for its sixth runnerup finish in the last seven years.

Matman

UHRICHVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Dan Wesson, only mediocre as a heavyweight, has found such success at 185 pounds he could become Claymont High School's first state wrestling champion.

Wesson has 41 victories in 42 bouts in two seasons at the lighter weight after a 11-6-1 record in two years as a heavyweight.

Rangers Defeat Vancouver, 4-2

By FRED ROTHENBERG

AP Sports Writer
Coach Emile Francis probably didn't call Bert Wilson up from the New York Rangers' farm club in Providence to go directly into the penalty box.

But that's how it turned out and the Rangers' little bench general didn't seem to mind.

The Ranger rookie left wing, making his National Hockey League debut in New York's 4-2 victory over Vancouver, did not pass go, did not collect $200, but did go directly to hockey's jail — the penalty box — during his first and only turn on the ice Wednesday night.

Wilson's tough-guy reputation beat him to New York and proved appropriate as he and Vancouver's Greg Boddy dueled for their honor with high hockey sticks at 16:33 of the second period.

Fifty seconds after the twin penalties, Jean Ratelle found room for the puck in Gary Smith's net, tying the score at 2-2 and the Rangers went on to their fifth straight victory.

Elsewhere in the NHL, the Chicago Black Hawks downed the Minnesota North Stars 3-1; the Pittsburgh Penguins beat the Los Angeles Kings 4-1, and the St. Louis Blues and California Golden Seals skated to a 2-2 tie.

In the World Hockey Association, the Minnesota Fighting Saints edged the Los Angeles Sharks 5-4 and the New England Whalers topped the Toronto Toros 5-3.

Penguins 4, Kings 1
Lowell MacDonald and Bob McManama, scoring three minutes apart, triggered a fourgoal second period that carried Pittsburgh over Los Angeles.

Golden Seals 2, Blues 2
California's Stan Weir scored with nine seconds left to lift the Seals into a 2-2 tie with St. Louis.

Black Hawks 3, North Stars 1
Dennis Hull scored two goals and goalie Tony Esposito stopped 28 shots to pull Chicago into a first-place tie with the idle Philadelphia Flyers in the NHL West.

Whalers 5, Toros 3

John Cuniff, recently recalled from the minors, scored two goals which helped New England beat Toronto and gave the Whalers sole possession of first place in the WHA East.

Saints 5, Sharks 4

Thirty-one seconds after Jim Niekamp of Los Angeles had tied the game at 4-4, Ted Hampson drilled in the game winner to give Minnesota its fifth straight victory.

Phillies In For Another Bad Year

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies, still lacking a consistent offense, thin in starting pitchers, and crying for power, will have trouble vacating the cellar this baseball season in the National League East.

Second-year Manager Danny Ozark has a lot of problems, including concern about lasting the season himself, if the Phillies don't get off to a respectable start.

Ozark knows that the pitching staff could begin and end with Steve Carlton, the lefthander who won 27 games and the Cy Young Award in 1972, and then lost 20 while capturing only 13 last year.

Let's look at the Phillies by position:

Pitching—Almost everyone feels that Carlton will come back and win 20 games in 1974. He reported in excellent condition and the determination to prove that last season was just one of those years. After Carlton, you get to right-hander Jim Lonborg, a 13-16 pitcher in 1973, apparently capable of doing as least as well this season.

After that it's competition among unproven throwers such as Ron Schueler, 8-7, obtained from Atlanta; second-year hurler Dick Ruthven, 6-9, and rookies Roy Thomas, a 17-game winner in the minors, and Erskine Thomason, who won 12 in Class A ball.

Wayne Twitchell, the 6-foot-6 right-hander who won 13 with a 2.57 ERA, is lost until at least May. He's recovering from a knee operation.

Catching—Bob Boone hit .261 in his 1973 rookie season and developed into one of the league's fine young prospects. He'll be backed up by Jim Essian, a .292 hitter in Class A, and Larry Cox, another rookie.

Infield—The big question mark in Ozark's infield is third baseman Mike Schmidt, who hit 18 home runs, drove in 78 runs and hit .196. He can handle the defense, but has to wield a more consistent bat if he hopes to stick. Behind Schmidt are Ed Crosby, Bill Grabarkewitz, Terry Harmon and Tony Taylor.

Larry Bowa is a fielding fixture at shortstop, but must boost a .211 average if the Phillies are going to make any noise; Dave Cash brings a lifetime .285 bat to the offense and is adequate in the field, while Willie Montanez, who hit .263 with 11 homers and 65 RBI, is as good a defensive first baseman as you'll find.

Outfield—Greg Luzinski hit .285, slammed 29 homers and drove in 86 runs in his second big league season. He figures to do nothing but get better.

Bill Robinson, a surprise .285 hitter with 25 homers, and Del Unser, who averaged .289, will platoon in center field.

Rangers Defeat Vancouver, 4-2

By FRED ROTHENBERG

AP Sports Writer

Coach Emile Francis probably didn't call Bert Wilson up from the New York Rangers' farm club in Providence to go directly into the penalty box.

But that's how it turned out and the Rangers' little bench general didn't seem to mind.

The Ranger rookie left wing, making his National Hockey League debut in New York's 4-2 victory over Vancouver, did not pass go, did not collect $200, but did go directly to hockey's jail — the penalty box — during his first and only turn on the ice Wednesday night.

Wilson's tough-guy reputation beat him to New York and proved appropriate as he and Vancouver's Greg Boddy duelled for their honor with high hockey sticks at 16:33 of the second period.

Fifty seconds after the twin penalties, Jean Ratelle found room for the puck in Gary Smith's net, tying the score at 2-2 and the Rangers went on to their fifth straight victory.

Elsewhere in the NHL, the Chicago Black Hawks downed the Minnesota North Stars 3-1; the Pittsburgh Penguins beat the Los Angeles Kings 4-1, and the St. Louis Blues and California Golden Seals skated to a 2-2 tie.

In the World Hockey Association, the Minnesota Fighting Saints edged the Los Angeles Sharks 5-4 and the New England Whalers topped the Toronto Toros 5-3.

Penguins 4, Kings 1
Lowell MacDonald and Bob McManama, scoring three minutes apart, triggered a fourgoal second period that carried Pittsburgh over Los Angeles.

Golden Seals 2, Blues 2
California's Stan Weir scored with nine seconds left to lift the Seals into a 2-2 tie with St. Louis.

Black Hawks 3, North Stars 1
Dennis Hull scored two goals and goalie Tony Esposito stopped 28 shots to pull Chicago into a first-place tie with the idle Philadelphia Flyers in the NHL West.

Whalers 5, Toros 3
John Cuniff, recently recalled from the minors, scored two goals which helped New England beat Toronto and gave the Whalers sole possession of first place in the WHA East.

Saints 5, Sharks 4
Thirty-one seconds after Jim Niekamp of Los Angeles had tied the game at 4-4, Ted Hampson drilled in the game winner to give Minnesota its fifth straight victory.

Phillies In For Another Bad Year

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP)— The Philadelphia Phillies, still lacking a consistent offense, thin in starting pitchers, and crying for power, will have trouble vacating the cellar this baseball season in the National League East.

Second-year Manager Danny Ozark has a lot of problems, including concern about lasting the season himself, if the Phillies don't get off to a respectable start.

Ozark knows that the pitching staff could begin and end with Steve Carlton, the lefthander who won 27 games and the Cy Young Award in 1972, and then lost 20 while capturing only 13 last year.

Let's look at the Phillies by position: Pitching—Almost everyone feels that Carlton will come back and win 20 games in 1974. He reported in excellent condition and the determination to prove that last season was just one of those years. After Carlton, you get to right-hander Jim Lonborg, a 13-16 pitcher in 1973, apparently capable of doing as least as well this season.

After that it's competition among unproven throwers such as Ron Schueler, 8-7, obtained from Atlanta; second-year hurler Dick Ruthven, 6-9, and rookies Roy Thomas, a 17-game winner in the minors, and Erskine Thomason, who won 12 in Class A ball. Wayne Twitchell, the 6-foot-6 right-hander who won 13 with a 2.57 ERA, is lost until at least May. He's recovering from a knee operation.

Catching—Bob Boone hit .261 in his 1973 rookie season and developed into one of the league's fine young prospects. He'll be backed up by Jim Essian, a .292 hitter in Class A, and Larry Cox, another rookie.

Infield—The big question mark in

Ozark's infield is third baseman Mike Schmidt, who hit 18 home runs, drove in 78 runs and hit .196. He can handle the defense, but has to wield a more consistent bat if he hopes to stick. Behind Schmidt are Ed Crosby, Bill Grabarkewitz, Terry Harmon and Tony Taylor.

Larry Bowe is a fielding fixture at shortstop, but must boost a .211 average if the Phillies are going to make any noise; Dave Cash brings a lifetime .285 bat to the offense and is adequate in the field, while Willie Montanez, who hit .263 with 11 homers and 65 RBI, is as good a defensive first baseman as you'll find.

Outfield—Greg Luzinski hit .285, slammed 29 homers and drove in 86 runs in his second big league season. He figures to do nothing but get better.

Bill Robinson, a surprise .285 hitter with 25 homers, and Del Unser, who averaged .289, will platoon in center field.

Nixon Alternates Stand With Solons

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is taking turns talking tough and then tenderly to the Democratic Congress. The pattern is going to continue, says his chief lobbyist.

Nixon talked tough at a news conference Monday about vetoing energy legislation.

Then Tuesday he met with Casper W. Weinberger, secretary of health, education and welfare, and directed him to echo the President's wrath about progress on pending education and health insurance bills.

Weinberger came from Nixon's office to a White House news briefing, where he berated a Senate committee as irresponsible on education legislation and chided a House panel for inaction on health insurance.

Wednesday, it was back to the more conciliatory mood of Nixon's Jan. 30 State of the Union message. This time he sent Peter J. Brennan, his labor secretary, out from an Oval Office meeting to speak soothingly of cooperation on minimum wage legislation, despite evident differences between the White House and Congress.

William E. Timmons, head of the seven-man White House congressional liaison staff, said in an interview that when other recommendations go to Congress in the weeks ahead, "there will be a conciliatory, cooperative tone in those messages."

"But this doesn't mean that if Congress fails to act on his initiatives or sticks him with bad legislation that he'll roll over and play dead," Timmons said.

"If by summer there has been no responsible action on the President's proposals, he'll call attention to that."

But Timmons doesn't want to sound like he's making threats: "I'm still optimistic we can get legislation."

The harshest words may come on emergency energy legislation passed by the House Wednesday and now headed for an expected presidential veto.

"The bill is unworkable and unmanageable," said Timmons. He said energy measures rate top priority in domestic legislation.

With the public complaining about long gasoline lines and congressional Democrats increasingly berating the administration's energy policy, more hot words are likely from the White House as the next entry in the tough-tender talk pattern of 1974.

Congressional Pay Boosts In Doubt

WASHINGTON (AP) — On paper it looked fine: a system of regular congressional pay raises, with no need for politically troublesome Senate and House votes to boost the salaries of members.

But that plan has come apart. As a result, congressional pay may stay at $42,500 a year, even though most members would like more. While the outcome is not yet clear, a similar raise for judges and top administration officials may be blocked, too.

If there is one thing a politician can do without, it is an election-year vote to increase his own salary. It can be a made-to-order issue for a November election rival, particularly with the economy troubled and with signs that this may be a difficult year for incumbents.

President Nixon proposed the pay raise, 7.5 per cent a year, to boost congressional pay to $52,800 in 1976. The package includes similar 22.5 per cent, three-year raises for the judiciary and for executive branch appointees, some 10,000 people in all.

It is all part of a system created in 1967. Under that law, a nine-member advisory commission examines the congressional, executive and judicial pay structure every four years, and recommends any changes it deems warranted.

In turn, the President makes his recommendation, effective in 30 days unless either branch of Congress votes to reject it. In this case, the deadline is March 6 of a congressional election year, and a rejection vote appears likely.

When the commission plan was enacted, everybody seemed insulated, Congress by the presidential judgment as to what its salary level should be, and the President by the guidance of the salary commission recommendations.

Actually, the current commission voted 7 to 2 for an immediate 25 per cent pay raise, emphasizing the need for higher pay to attract and keep federal judges and top civil servants. Nixon recommended somewhat less and spread it over three years, noting that the government has been asking private industry employees to forego big increases.

All Congress had to do was nothing, and the raise would have taken effect. But there was pressure for a vote, particularly among senators who are going to be candidates in November. The result could be rejection of the whole package, although a formula awaiting Senate action would drop only the congressional raise.

Statistically, if not politically, there are strong arguments for the increase. The officials involved have not had a raise since 1969. In that period, as one House member noted, civil service employees have had raises totaling 36.5 per cent, average wages in comparable private employment have gone up 28 per cent, and the cost of living has increased 28.4 per cent. Having offered those figures, the congressman announced his opposition to any pay raise.

The package pay plan has created another problem since, by law, the top civil service salary cannot exceed the bottom pay rung for appointed officials. That has stalled salaries for career government executives at $36,000 a year, and has some bosses and subordinates at the same pay level.

Foreman Retires From USS Chemicals Circleville Plant

RETIRING—James (Russ) Skaggs, left, is congratulated by USS Chemicals district manager E. Wayne Miller upon his retirement. Skaggs was honored at a dinner recently.

USS Chemicals, Molded Plastic Products, Circleville, announced the retirement of James (Russ) Skaggs, tool maintenance foreman.

Skaggs is retiring from USS Chemicals after 18 years of continuous service. His service started with the company in April, 1956, in the tool maintenance department. He was subsequently promoted to foreman.

He was honored recently at a dinner at the Gas Lite Inn, Chillicothe, by his co-workers. Wayne Miller, district manager for Circleville, served as toastmaster for the evening recalling past experiences and growth of the company. A gift was presented to Skaggs from the employees.

Skaggs and his wife Eleanor reside at 130 Dunmore Road.

Shoemaker Opposes Gun Legislation

In commenting on gun control laws that is now pending before the legislature, Rep. Myrl H. Shoemaker (D-House District 88) announced today that he was strongly opposed to any attempt to enact gun registration laws or outlaw the sale of firearms to our citizens.

In voicing his opposition to the registration and sale of firearms, Shoemaker stated, "Many of the proposals in this field have included such schemes as the fingerprinting and photographing of firearm registrants. I feel that such a program would constitute a serious invasion of privacy and a threat to individual freedom." Shoemaker also pointed out, that in view of the fourth amendment guarantee of the right to bear arms, the constitutionality of a comprehensive firearms sale and registration law could be seriously questioned.

Rep. Shoemaker stated that he was not opposed to all forms of gun control. The Representative noted that the 107th General Assembly had passed a bill strictly controlling the sale and ownership of sawed-off shotguns without a dissenting vote in either house.

Shoemaker voiced support for legislation designed to keep guns out of the hands of convicted felons, drug addicts, alcoholics, and those not mentally competent to exercise responsible ownership of firearms.

Rep. Shoemaker concluded his remarks by stating that there were millions of law abiding, responsible owners of firearms in the United States, who used their guns for hunting and sport. He feared that these people would bear the burden imposed by sale and gun registration, while those who intended to use their guns for illegal purposes would certainly not hesitate to disobey the registration laws. The representative felt that one possible solution to the problem would be to drastically increase the penalties for any crime wherein a firearm is used, in order to deter their illegal use by the criminal element.

25-YEARS AT GE—Mary Dumm joined the ranks of the Circleville GE Lamp Plant's Quarter Century Club on Feb. 24 when she was presented her service award by Ed Grigg, plant manager. She began her career at GE as a wire straightener and is presently part of the Quality Standards Inspection operation in the plant.

Balloonist Still Lost

SANTA CRUZ DE TENERIFE, Canary Islands (AP) — Spanish news agencies say a weather balloon or an optical illusion may have been responsible for a flurry of reports Wednesday that missing American balloonist Thomas Gatch Jr. had been sighted.

The Cifra and Europa Press agencies had reported that thousands of people saw Gatch's balloon about 8 a.m. over the Oratava valley, on the island of Tenerife.

The reports said the balloon, described as both blue and rose colored, was heading south-southwest at 3,000 to 9,000 feet.

But government authorities, police and communications stations in the Canaries denied receiving an official report of the sighting and no search was launched. The islands are about 150 miles off the northwest coast of Africa.

Gatch, a 47-year-old retired colonel from Alexandria, Va. lifted off from Harrisburg, Pa. on Feb. 18 in an attempt to be the first person to cross the Atlantic in a balloon. He had a 10-day food supply for the trip, which he expected to last two to five days.

Court Upholds Ruling

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Supreme Court Wednesday let stand lower court orders closing a Toledo theater, Westwood, for one year for showing the film, "Without a Stitch."

It modified a Sixth District Court of Appeals decision to limit confiscation of box office receipts to the net rather than the gross taken in after an injunction was issued against the film.

The Lucas County Common Pleas Court handed down the injunction Sept. 16, 1970, but let the theater remain open pending appeals.

Both the appellate court and the Supreme Court said it was in error to do so.

In addition to being closed as a nuisance, the theater was taxed $300 under the original order and must turn over net receipts taken after the injunction to the county treasurer's office.

The complaint against the film was filed by Clark L. Ewing of Sylvania.

Bogus Paper Empire Folds

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A father and son from Akron who built a bogus paper empire were convicted in federal court Wednesday of 20 counts of mail fraud.

Henry D. Stull, 52, and Henry Stull Jr., 31, were sentenced to five years in prison and a $1,000 fine on each count. Judge Ben C. Green suspended the terms on 10 counts and allowed the others to run concurrently.

The prosecution showed that from September 1970 to March 1971, the Stulls ordered thousands of dollars in merchandise using the name of the now-defunct Independent Sales Company. The merchandise then was sent to a warehouse where it was picked up and auctioned off.

The Stulls went into bankruptcy in 1971 after more than 450 creditors claimed the pair owed them $467,000.

South Vietnamese Launch Attack

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Hundreds of South Vietnamese troops spearheaded by an armored column launched a two-prong offensive 25 miles northeast of Saigon today, field reports said.

Military sources said the purpose of the drive is to secure territory from the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong, who have cut all major highways connecting Saigon with the provinces to the north.

Meanwhile, the Viet Cong charged the South Vietnamese air force harassed three helicopters of the International Commission of Control and Supervision north of Saigon and forced them to turn back from Loc Ninh, 75 miles north of Saigon, where an ICCS team was to observe the release of prisoners by the Saigon side.

The result could be rejection of the whole package, although a formula awaiting Senate action would drop only the congressional raise.

Statistically, if not politically, there are strong arguments for the increase. The officials involved have not had a raise since 1969. In that period, as one House member noted, civil service employees have had raises totaling 36.5 per cent, average wages in comparable private employment have gone up 28 per cent, and the cost of living has increased 28.4 per cent. Having offered those figures, the congressman announced his opposition to any pay raise.

The package pay plan has created another problem since, by law, the top civil service salary cannot exceed the bottom pay rung for appointed officials. That has stalled salaries for career government executives at $36,000 a year, and has some bosses and subordinates at the same pay level.

Shoemaker Opposes Gun Legislation

In commenting on gun control laws that is now pending before the legislature, Rep. Myrl H. Shoemaker (D-House District 88) announced today that he was strongly opposed to any attempt to enact gun registration laws or outlaw the sale of firearms to our citizens.

In voicing his opposition to the registration and sale of firearms, Shoemaker stated, "Many of the proposals in this field have included such schemes as the fingerprinting and photographing of firearm registrants. I feel that such a program would constitute a serious invasion of privacy and a threat to individual freedom." Shoemaker also pointed out, that in view of the fourth amendment guarantee of the right to bear arms, the constitutionality of a comprehensive firearms sale and registration law could be seriously questioned.

Rep. Shoemaker stated that he was not opposed to all forms of gun control. The Representative noted that the 107th General Assembly had passed a bill strictly controlling the sale and ownership of sawed-off shotguns without a dissenting vote in either house.

Shoemaker voiced support for legislation designed to keep guns out of the hands of convicted felons, drug addicts, alcoholics, and those not mentally competent to exercise responsible ownership of firearms.

Rep. Shoemaker concluded his remarks by stating that there were millions of law abiding, responsible owners of firearms in the United States, who used their guns for hunting and sport. He feared that these people would bear the burden imposed by sale and gun registration, while those who intended to use their guns for illegal purposes would certainly not hesitate to disobey the registration laws. The representative felt that one possible solution to the problem would be to drastically increase the penalties for any crime wherein a firearm is used, in order to deter their illegal use by the criminal element.

Balloonist Still Lost

SANTA CRUZ DE TENERIFE, Canary Islands (AP) — Spanish news agencies say a weather balloon or an optical illusion may have been responsible for a flurry of reports Wednesday that missing American balloonist Thomas Gatch Jr. had been sighted.

The Cifra and Europa Press agencies had reported that thousands of people saw Gatch's balloon about 8 a.m. over the Oratava valley, on the island of Tenerife.

The reports said the balloon, described as both blue and rose colored, was heading south-southwest at 3,000 to 9,000 feet.

But government authorities, police and communications stations in the Canaries denied receiving an official report of the sighting and no search was launched. The islands are about 150 miles off the northwest coast of Africa.

Gatch, a 47-year-old retired colonel from Alexandria, Va. lifted off from Harrisburg, Pa. on Feb. 18 in an attempt to be the first person to cross the Atlantic in a balloon. He had a 10-day food supply for the trip, which he expected to last two to five days.

Court Upholds Ruling

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Supreme Court Wednesday let stand lower court orders closing a Toledo theater, Westwood, for one year for showing the film, "Without a Stitch."

It modified a Sixth District Court of Appeals decision to limit confiscation of box office receipts to the net rather than the gross taken in after an injunction was issued against the film.

The Lucas County Common Pleas Court handed down the injunction Sept. 16, 1970, but let the theater remain open pending appeals.

Both the appellate court and the Supreme Court said it was in error to do so.

In addition to being closed as a nuisance, the theater was taxed $300 under the original order and must turn over net receipts taken after the injunction to the county treasurer's office.

The complaint against the film was filed by Clark L. Ewing of Sylvania.

Bogus Paper Empire Folds

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A father and son from Akron who built a bogus paper empire were convicted in federal court Wednesday of 20 counts of mail fraud.

Henry D. Stull, 52, and Henry Stull Jr., 31, were sentenced to five years in prison and a $1,000 fine on each count. Judge Ben C. Green suspended the terms on 10 counts and allowed the others to run concurrently.

The prosecution showed that from September 1970 to March 1971, the Stulls ordered thousands of dollars in merchandise using the name of the now-defunct Independent Sales Company. The merchandise then was sent to a warehouse where it was picked up and auctioned off.

The Stulls went into bankruptcy in 1971 after more than 450 creditors claimed the pair owed them $467,000.

South Vietnamese Launch Attack

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Hundreds of South Vietnamese troops spearheaded by an armored column launched a two-prong offensive 25 miles northeast of Saigon today, field reports said.

Military sources said the purpose of the drive is to secure territory from the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong, who have cut all major highways connecting Saigon with the provinces to the north.

Meanwhile, the Viet Cong charged the South Vietnamese air force harassed three helicopters of the International Commission of Control and Supervision north of Saigon and forced them to turn back from Loc Ninh, 75 miles north of Saigon, where an ICCS team was to observe the release of prisoners by the Saigon side.
